SEA RAIDER SINKS SHIP OFF BRAZIL

BRITISH SCOUTS FLY OVER BERLIN

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The air ministry announced today British planes have made a night reconnaissance flight over Berlin.

In making the announcement of the first British flight over the German capital, the air ministry said:

"Successful air reconnaissances by day and by night have again been carried out over Germany by the Royal Air Force.

"The night reconnaissances included Berlin and Potsdam."

(Potsdam is the site of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm's palace.)

NAZI SEA RAIDER WARS ON SHIPS

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The ministry of information announced today that an armed raider had attacked and sunk the 5051-ton British ship Clement of the Booth line in the south Atlantic.

The five-year-old Clement had called at New York August 29.

"The raider has not yet been identified, but the correct steps are being taken," the ministry said.

It said it was believed the raider was either a cruiser or a "pocket battleship."

AFTER "QUIET WEEK"

(Britain's preoccupation heretofore has been chiefly submarines and only last week Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, said that "a week has passed since a British ship, alone or in convoy, has been sunk or even molested by a U-boat on the high seas."

(Up to the announcement of the sinking of the Clement, at least 31 British ships had been

Nazis Sink 3 More Scandinavian Ships

(Sinking of three vessels today brought the total sent to the bottom during the first month of restricted naval warfare to 60 with a gross tonnage of more than 250,000 tons. Of these 32 were British, 2 French, 6 German, 2 Russian and 18 flying the flags of other nations. In the first month of unrestricted warfare in the last conflict (Feb. 1 to Mar. 1, 1917) 184 ships with a tonnage of 458,660 were sunk.)

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 2 (INS)—Three more neutral Scandinavian vessels paid the penalty of war in the North Sea and the Baltic today on the heels of the sinking of the Danish steamer Vendia with loss of 11 lives.

The Finnish schooner Baltic, bound from Denmark to Sweden with a cargo of flint, was sunk in the German mine fields. The crew, eight men and two women, was believed saved.

The Swedish freighter Gun was torpedoed in the Skagerrak Sunday night, according to reports received here. Her crew was rescued by a Danish vessel. The Gun of 1136 tons, was enroute to Antwerp.

Capture of the Swedish freighter Algeria, 1670 tons, and her internment in Kiel was reported by the Swedish foreign ministry. The Algeria was bound for Genoa with a cargo of pig iron and wood pulp.

The Venida was torpedoed off the Danish coast in the Skagerrak near Hanstholm while en route to England with empty holds. She was a 1150-ton coal carrier. A Danish vessel picked up six survivors of her crew of 17.

Survivors said the Venida was torpedoed before she had a chance to obey a U-boat "stop" signal. The victims of the sinking were trapped in the engine and bunk rooms.

Denmark's minister to Berlin was ordered to lodge a strong protest with the German government today.

New Torpedo Sinks Ship Without Sound; Crew Feels 'Bump'

OSLO, Oct. 2 (AP)—The master of the sunken Norwegian freighter Solaas said today he believed the ship had been the victim of a new torpedo technique.

He said no explosion was heard in what he described as a new-style torpedoing of the Solaas Thursday.

"The Solaas was stopped in high seas, preventing the Germans from coming aboard," he said. "Five enginemen heard a hissing sound, then felt a bump.

"The submarine disappeared and five minutes later the Solaas began sinking from holes in the engineroom and bunkroom, indicating a new device penetrated the ship's hull without an explosion."

War Diary

32d Day

On the Sea—Germany's first blow in the unrestricted sea warfare, announced on Saturday, was struck today when an armed Nazi raider sunk the British freighter Clement in the South Atlantic. This startling development brought back vivid memories of the German raiders Emden and Moewe, which ranged the seas inflicting tremendous damage on allied shipping during World War No. 1. The master of the Norwegian freighter Solaas reported a mystery noiseless, explosionless torpedo sunk his ship. The Swedish freighter Gun was torpedoed off Jutland. The Finnish schooner Baltic was sunk, presumably by a mine in the Baltic sea. The Swedish freighter Algeria and the Latvian government ship Imanta were seized by the Germans.

Behind the Front—The war, now mostly of words and diplomacy, gathered momentum today in European capitals. In London, the British strengthened themselves for hostilities on a World War scale, and again ignored peace overtures from Russia and Berlin. Moscow, meanwhile, turned her eye to the Balkans to keep them neutral under the Soviet leadership. Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano conferred with Hitler at Berlin in what was believed to be the launching of a "final peace offensive." In London, it was reported that Hitler may offer to abdicate in favor of Marshal Goering in order to persuade Britian and France to call off their war against "Hitlersim."

On the Land—It remained comparatively quiet on the fronts. The French War Ministry announced small attack and ambushes, while the German Army high command announced it was taking possession of Warsaw as planned.

In the Air—London claimed a successful night scouting flight over Berlin. On the western front aerial combat cost the British four lost planes yesterday. Paris reported seven German planes shot down in another "dog fight."

HITLER AND DUCE MAP NEW MOVES

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 2—As Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano left Berlin for Rome after a visit of only 18½ hours, the question of "war to the hilt or peace in our time" narrowed down in the German view today to one that rests solely with London and Paris to decide.

Ciano and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop wound up their conversations in record time.

A one-hour review of the European situation in general just before the Italian statesman boarded his train at the Anhalster station served to cover the various points at stake.

It was authoritatively indicated that come what may, the Rome-Berlin axis remains "unimpaired."

The war-or-peace situation is expected to reach its climax this next week-end. Hitler will probably go before the Reichstag on Friday or Saturday to outline a peace program designed to afford competent neutral mediators, including President Roosevelt, an opportunity to put an end to limitless carnage in the west before it truly begins.

BULLETIN

ROME, Oct. 2 (INS)—Chancellor Hitler may outline the terms of his "peace ultimatum" to the Reichstag as early as Wednesday of this week, the Messagero stated today in a dispatch from Berlin.

Hitler's address will probably take the form of a "peace ultimatum."

His object, it was stated authoritatively, will be to demonstrate that continuation of the war would be fruitless, and that Great Britain and France will have to bear for posterity the responsibility or war

A LESSON IN WEIGHT—Mrs. Jeanette Hann steps on the scales to show what the skimpy Nazi "Iron Diet" does to one's weight. Leslie Hann (center) looks on as Boston Evening American reporter makes offical record —98 pounds.

BOY, 7, IN REVOLT WHEN HIS FAMILY TRIES NAZI DIET

By GEORGE W. CLARKE

Let it be said now, once and for all, Theron Hann does not approve of the Nazis' "iron ration."

Theron, it should be known, is the youngest son of the Leslie Hanns, who live at 1153 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, the family which is living for a week on exactly the food which would be available to them were they in war-torn Germany instead of being in the peace and security of our own happy land.

And to add their own small mite to the drive to keep this land peaceful, and secure, and happy that they have undertaken this onerous, uncomfortable experiment.

The whole family dislikes the diet, but they're sticking to it, nevertheless, so you may realise and understand just what war behind the lines means . . . It must not come to America!

They don't like, the whole six of them, but Theron, aged 7, likes it least of all.

Theron likes eggs—just as many as his mother, Mrs. Jeanette Hann, will let him have, sometimes two, even three. And now, for one whole week, seven long days, he has been allotted but one egg, and that, probably, will go into a pudding.

A fine thing! Theron, it must be known, is in open rebellion.

Father Hann, who is sort of hoping that this chance to tell a lot of people about his background and

Arms Laws' Repeal Urged as Peace Aid

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—With a warning that Germany may again resort to unrestricted submarine warfare, the Administration called upon the Senate today to enact its cash-andcarry neutrality bill to keep American ships and nationals out of the danger zones of Europe.

Before galleries packed with eminent Americans and intently interested diplomats of foreign powers, Chairman Key Pittman (D.) of Nevada, of the Senate foreign relations committee, opened the momentous debate on President Roosevelt's proposal for repeal of the present arms embargo and substitution of the cash-and-carry neutrality.

He demanded that the isolationists opposing repeal of the arms embargo put aside the "pride of past attitudes" and consider "realistically" the administration's "very much more restrictive" neutrality program.

Throughout his opening statement as the President's foreign affairs spokesman in the upper branch of Congress, Pittman maintained that war will not come to America now as it did in 1917 if the cash-and-carry bill is written into law.

STRONGER NEUTRALITY

Point by point, Pittman defended the Administration's program as stronge insurance for America's continued neutrality than the arms embargo. He denied, in a sweeping statement, the charges that this program "repealed neutrality."

The legislation's provision for 90-day credits to belligerents purchasing war materials and other commodities in this country for shipment in their own vessels, was held by Pittman to be "cash" in a commercial sense. Then, too, he added, the President may withhold any such credits if he sees fit.

THOUSANDS CAN'T GET IN

The galleries sat hushed as Pittman, in a quiet voice, presented the Administration's case for a revision of the nation's neutrality policies. Vice-President Garner had had warned the galleries at the outset that spectators must remain quiet—that "the questions here are very grave."

Eighty-four senators were present on call for the first quorum

HYPNOTIZED, SHE SAYS—Thrice-wed Peggy Ann Kent, 22, daughter of a movie company president, charges a "hypnotic influence" was exerted over her by Dr. William Smith . . . as she seeks to vacate an $8,777.25 judgment the middle-aged doctor obtained from her.

GIRL 'HYPNOTIZED' 10 YEARS, CHARGED

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—For ten years—since she was a girl of 12—she has been under the hypnotic spell of a middle-aged doctor, Peggy Ann Kent, daughter of a movie company president, alleges in an affidavit revealed today.

The affidavit, signed by the thrice-married Peggy Ann, has been made the basis of a court action to void an $8777.25 judgment secured against her by Dr. William Smith, drug manufacturer and head of Laadith Laboratories, Inc., of Fifth ave.

The order on Dr. Smith, to show cause why the judgment against Peggy Ann should not be vacated, is returnable in court tomorrow.

It is a strange story the pampered daughter of the magnate—the girl who eloped at 15—tells in the affidavit.

Dr. Smith, says the 22-year-old girl, came into her life 10 years back, at times assuming "a paternal attitude and at other times leading me to believe that he was in love with me."

She charges that, under his spell, she has given him money almost continuously "because he has always exercised somewhat of a hypnotic influence over me and generally he has been able to persuade me to lend him money."

The note now in dispute and on

Cardinal Mundelein Found Dead in Bed

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—George Cardinal Mundelein, 67, archbishop of Chicago, died suddenly today.

He was found dead in bed at his residence in Mundelein, Ill., by Msgr. Patrick Hayes. Fr. Hayes had gone to the cardinal's room to call him when the prelate did not appear for his customary morning devotions.

The cardinal, who won wide notice for building the Chicago diocese into one of the largest and wealthiest in the world, was regarded as in "perfect health" as late as yesterday.

The diocesan office declared he had worked at his duties Saturday and said mass yesterday, as was his custom, at the seminary in Mundelein.

One of the best known of the Catholic clergy in the United States, Cardinal Mundelein was mentioned as a papal candidate on the death of Pope Pius XI this year.

The Cardinal attracted world-wide attention in 1937 when he referred to Adolf Hitler, in a public address as "an Austrian paper hanger and a poor one at that."

He was a close friend of President Roosevelt, whom he visited in the White House on several occasions. The President, on a tour of the nation in 1936, was a guest of the Cardinal at a luncheon in the prelate's Chicago residence.

In 1916, at a banquet honoring the Cardinal, hundreds of civic leaders and Catholic laity were stricken ill in a poison plot which shocked the nation. Several died. Poison was found in the soup, and investigators traced the plot to an anarchist chef, Jean Crones.

Under Cardinal Mundelein's tenure, the first Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic Church ever brought to the United States was conducted in Chicago in 1926. More than a million of the faithful from every nation of the world participated.

Fierce Gale on Way to Hub

Storm warnings were hoisted along the Atlantic coast from Sandy Hook to Boston today, as a disturbance moving north from the Virginia Capes threatened northerly gales

While the weather prediction for Boston and vicinity promised clearing skies tomorrow, following intermittent rain this afternoon and tonight, the Weather Bureau warned of winds freshening to "moderate gale force" off shore.

A northeast storm, with wind of threatened gale force, assaulted the Rhode Island coast today and drove fishing and other boats to shelter.

Thirty-eight sailboats of the Off Soundings Club of Springfield were stormbound in Great Salt pond, Block Island, where the wind reached 38 miles with 50 miles expected late today.

Boat Upset 18 Times and He's Not Half-Way!

GREEN RIVER, Utah, Oct. 2 (AP)—With 500 miles of perilous, solitary travel behind and 700 miles yet to cover, Charles F. Mann, York, Pa., taxidermist, is prepared to continue by kayak his descent of the swift-flowing Green and Colorado rivers.

Mann arrived last night at this remote eastern Utah settlement. Nine days ago he left Jensen, Utah, 150 miles north, in his flimsy 14-foot canvas canoe. During those nine days, completely out of touch with the world, his boat capsized 18 times.

The most difficult stretches, however, lie ahead.

Until he reaches Lees Ferry, Ariz., 300 miles away, Mann will find scarcely a trail leading to the stream and no community where he can replenish supplies.

He will resume his tortuous journey Wednesday.

He began his solo trip, the first ever made in so light a craft, at Green River, Wyo., Sept. 12.

DE HAAS SEES REVOLT HITLER PERIL

Germany, allied with a designing Russia, today may be standing on the brink of the abyss of revolution, according to Prof. J. Anton de Haas of Harvard University, world famous economist.

He saw ahead:

Germany unable to stand a war of three years' duration because she has an insufficient supply of commodities, particularly vital oil, and has no way to get it elsewhere.

She may collapse internally, perhaps in as short a time as a year.

There is a distinct possibility that Russia, playing a game of Machiavellian diplomacy, and the Allies, England and France, may be engaged in a race to determine whether a German revolution will be followed by a Communist or a conservative government.

MUST FEED POLES

Prof. de Haas, world renowned authority on international commercial relations, has spent part of the past two years in Germany.

He found Germany without an external financial structure and Czechoslovakia and Austria economic liabilities. Now Germany must feed the Poles.

Possessing intimate first-hand knowledge of conditions within the Reich, Prof. de Haas declared there were, even before the war, mutterings of discontent among the people. The "old guard" of the German army is hostile to Hitler's policies. The industrialists, who helped Hitler to power to escape Communism, were bitter when he grabbed industrial control, and are even more bitter since his alliance with the Kremlin.

Russia, which has taken the valuable parts of Poland, leaving Germany only a liability, might become the dominant power of western Europe by the mere expedient of organizing and supporting a Communistic revolution among the workers, he declared.

SAYS FRITSCH MURDERED

England and France, on the other hand, he said, are hoping desperately that the German revolution, if and when it comes, may be organized by the old army and the industrialists and will establish a conservative capitalistic government.

Two circumstances indicate this. First, the death of Gen. von Fritsch, a leader of the antagonistic old army, which, Professor De Haas declared, was "without a doubt," a murder ordered by the German high command.

Second, is the otherwise inexplicable restraint of the British Royal Air force in refraining from bombing Essen and the entire Ruhr valley, focal point of the German munitions and industrial works which are extremely vulnerable to air attack. It is possible England hopes to encourage the favor of the industrialists by preserving their plants, he said.

HITLER'S COSTLY "VICTORY"

"Germany has lost the war in the east," said Professor De Haas. "She may have won it from a military standpoint, but all she gained was an economic liability. The Poles must eat and Germany must feed them. Germany, however, gave up the Ukraine wheat fields to Russia. What she gained in coal deposits in Poland is more than wiped out by the crippling of that industry in Saarbrucken on the western front.

"Czechoslovakia and Austria were likewise long-term liabilities. They acted as a sort of jab in the arm to Germany's internal financial structure but there must be an ultimate breakdown.

"Germany has no external financial structure. Her internal structure has been maintained by force of arms. Trade with other nations has been on a barter system.

"In war time, Germany's greatest need is oil and gasoline to carry on major warfare. But where will she get it?

"Russia has it, to be sure. But Russia would not give it to Germany for nothing. She would require consumers goods, railroad supplies, and industrial machinery in payment. How can Germany supply that with most of her men in the army? Even assuming she could, how could the oil be transported to Germany?

"In addition, Germany's wheat crop was not as good as in other years, considering the new territory she has acquired and new populations she must feed.

"While I was in Germany, there were shortages of fats, butter, eggs and other products. Germany's present food situation is about what it was after two years of the first World War.

"Another thing is definite. The German diet today is definitely deficient in fats and other proteins. How long that can go on nobody knows.

"One thing is certain. Germany cannot stand a long war.

"Whatever the outcome, I cannot see any other conclusion than that Russia will emerge the dominant power of eastern Europe. And if Germany becomes a Communist nation, Russia will be the dominant power of western Europe."

Polish 'Idol' Now in Exile As 'Traitor'

MARSHAL SMIGLY-RYDZ
Shunned in Exile

BUCHAREST, Oct. 2 (AP)—Once proud Field Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, commander of Poland's vanquished legions, was described by refugees today as a broken exile, shunned by fellow officers who coldly regard him as a general who deserted his doomed but fighting army.

The field marshal, along with a number of other Polish officers, is interned at a Craiova hotel.

Germany was reported, at the same time, to have protested to Rumania because refugee President Ignace Moscicki of Poland was allowed to resign and name a successor while on Rumanian soil.

Moscicki resigned Saturday and named Wladislaw Raczkiewcz, who is in Paris, as his successor. He had been kept in "limited" domicile but left for Paris after resigning.

Refugees from Craiova said Smigly-Rydz and other ranking officers were allowed to use the hotel dining room and lobby under the surveillance of guards but that the marshal seldom joined other members of the staff in conversation and ate at another table alone.

Many Polish officers were reported to avoid their former commander because they held him responsible for the quick demoralization of Polish armies under the German onslaught.

7 German Planes Shot Down in 'Dog Fight,' Says Paris

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 2—Bright sunshine today brought a renewal of intense aerial activity along the western front as Allied planes engaged in reconnaissance flights and other maneuvers.

Today's action marked another step in the struggle for air supremacy on the Franco-German border.

With more air battles reported over the no man's land between the Maginot and Siegfried lines, it was reported in Paris that seven German Messerschmidt fighting planes were shot down in "dog fights" on Saturday.

At the same time, it was revealed that the relentlessly advancing French ground forces have collected 3000 German mines in the captured Warndt forest areas. Approximately 2000 more were exploded.

Thus the Germans left about 5000 mines in an area of about two square miles. French sources said this is a fair example of what may be expected on any terrain abandoned by German troops.

Every imaginable means was employed by the Germans to conceal the triggers of the mines.

Harmless looking crates which exploded when the lids were lifted were left hidden under the ground, along with wires and other types of triggers which exploded the charges when touched by advancing soldiers.

Reports from Brussels said Nazi forces were massing along the west wall and the Germans are calling up more reserves.

In France, the government took another step toward resumption of normal life despite the war. Schools, all of which have been transferred to rural areas, reopened today.

BLOW AT LEFTISTS

The government at the same time levelled another blow at Leftists by decreeing dissolution of the Algerian People's party.

During the past 56 hours, it was stated, whole air squadrons have been engaged in the "dog fights," with French and British pilots claimed to be more than holding their own.

(Editor's note: Last night a German communique stated eight Allied planes were shot down Saturday in engagements over the Western Front.)

At the same time, the French ground forces were reported to have won new positions threatening Saarbrucken and Saarlouis, important German centers in the Saar mining region.

The morning's communique, No. 57, said merely:

"The night was relatively quiet. There were raids (coups de main) and ambushes at different parts of the front."

The communique last night, No. 56, said:

"It was a quiet day. There was artillery fire from both sides east of the Saar."

VALOR IN THE AIR

Reliable reports from the front gave details of intensified aerial warfare. One story told how a French pilot deliberately went into a spin to avoid German machine gun bullets, then righted his plane and shot down the German craft.

The air fights apparently have increased owing to the French and British reconnaissance flights over the Siegfried line, as additional German troops and equipment are being rushed to concentration points.

French advices from the front said a new thrust into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line won the French an important area, a mile nearer Saarlouis.

Hitler Gets 2 Votes in Election In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2 (AP)—Adolf Hitler received two votes in the recent primary in Philadelphia, the official tabulation disclosed today. One was for the Democratic nomination for the Supreme Court and the other for the Republican nomination for receiver of taxes.

Liner Dodges Mines, Docks Here With 156

Limping into port with a 10-degree list to starboard—from a hastily loaded, shifting cargo—the American Export Lines steamer Excalibur docked at the South Boston Army Base today after a trip through the mine-infested waters of the Mediterranean and North Atlantic.

On board were 156 passengers living in quarters intended for 100, sleeping in the restaurant and the ship's hospital, nerved and tense with the experiences they had undergone in the dictator-ridden, war-mad countries of Europe.

James F. Cook, Harvard business school graduate, who disembarked at Boston to go to his home in Waynesboro, Va., told of his bicycle tour through the continent.

"HITLER BOYS" FRIENDLY

"We toured all day and slept in youth hostels at night," he said.

"The Hitler Youth boys were amiable and showed us every consideration; they bought us wine and slept on benches that we might have their beds. They are perfectly disciplined to do what they are told, and they look on Hitler as a god.

"He has done everything for them that a boy might want, and they would obey his every wish. One of them once laughingly said America should be a German colony. The lower classes are solidly behind Hitler; he has removed them from drudgery and slavery; but he has pulled the upper and middle classes down to their level.

"But the upper and middle classes are not revolutionists.

"WAKE UP, AMERICAN

Cook said the night Russia and Germany signed their non-aggression pact the leader of the hostel in which he and his companion, Joseph Hughes of Waynesboro, were sleeping shook him awake and said:

"Wake up, American." The German youth explained the pact and then, shaking hands with himself, said: "Germany and Russia are like this now. Watch us go."

Others on board, returning from the war zones, were Ruth C. Chill, German girl en route to New York after being separated from her fiance by the war; a 19-year-old Egyptian girl, Nellie Douek, coming to this country to be married, and Una Wyte, American singer.

Britain Denies All 'Weakening' Rumors

LONDON, Oct. 2 (INS)—A crop of wild rumors—all categorically denied—spread in diplomatic circles today despite Winston Churchill's emphatic reiteration of British war aims and the expectation that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would tell the House of Commons this afternoon that Britain's determination will not be swerved from its set purpose.

Investigation in official circles disclosed no foundation whatever for believing the Allies are wavering on any point. Among the rumors which met vigorous disclaimers were:

1—That Britain is lending a willing ear to a Russian suggestion that the Russo-German agreement would be cancelled in exchange for a 100,000,000 pound sterling loan and other inducements.

2—That Britain already has offered a 60,000,000 pound loan to the Soviets.

3—That Britain and France are now willing to let the real issue be sidetracked by German creation of a Polish buffer state.

4—That Britain and France would both be satisfied if Hitler resigned.

In connection with this last point it was pointed out that there would be nothing to prevent the Nazis from managing a plebiscite "inviting" Hitler to return after a suitable period.

It was emphasized again in strongest terms that Anglo-French solidarity "remains complete in every detail."

Further strengthening British determination to fight to the end, King George issued a proclamation ordering all men of 20 to 22 years of age to hold themselves in readiness for a call to the colors—a move which will add 250,000 men to the British fighting forces.

Say Hitler May Resign As Peace Gesture

LONDON, Oct. 2 (INS)—Adolf Hitler may offer to abdicate in favor of Marshal Hermann Goering in order to persuade Britain and France to call off their war for the end of "Hitlerism," two London morning papers reported today.

The Daily Mirror said Hitler is holding this scheme in reserve, considering it to be his "cleverest diplomatic trick." The Daily Sketch said many reports were current that the German Fuehrer's suggestions to Mussolini for a peace plan include his willingness to erase himself completely from public life and retire to a life of painting and writing.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

SEE NEW HITLER-MUSSOLINI PEACE MOVE

guilt if Germany's "olive branch" is brushed aside.

Informed circles believed Hitler would leave the door open for neutral mediators to chart a path to peace.

Despite lack of official evidence, there were definite indications in high German quarters that Hitler was considering the advisability of sounding out President Roosevelt as to the prospects of strictly neutral mediation preconditioned upon the creation of an autonomous Polish state and recognition of the present state of affairs as a "fait accompli."

PLAN TO BLAST BRITAIN

A positive refusal by Britain and France to compromise on any such basis may be expected to bring into action Hitler's complete war machine on land, sea and in the air, particularly new and formidable weapons which are directed chiefly against England.

(Editor's note: In his recent speech at Danzig, Hitler hinted at some new secret weapons of terrible destructive power which he threatened to use as an answer to Britain's blockade.)

Thus, if his peace offer is turned down, his object will be to force a decision in a short war of only a couple of months.

It was understood that all points of European war and peace problems, including Russo-German relations, were clarified during Ciano's brief visit. In addition, the future course of joint Italo-German relations was mapped in detail.

AXIS UNSHAKEN?

In this connection, emphasis was given an authoritative declaration that whatever the outcome of the peace move may be, the Rome-Berlin axis stands unshaken and unshakeable.

Political circles said they were extremely pleased with the outcome of the deliberations and the "cordial atmosphere" which surrounded the conversaions.

The deliberations, it was said, were merely of a consultative character. No decisions were made and none was necessary, it was stated, "owing to the unchanged and hearty relations between the axis powers."

Ciano returned to Rome aboard a special train accompanied by his chef de cabinet, Signor Anfuio, Marchese Lanza D'Ajeta and Marchese Marieni.

Before departing, he received an honor detachment of Hitler's personal bodyguard.

In a two and a half hour interview, which was attended by Von Ribbentrop, Hitler and Ciano explored all possibilities of bringing the war to a close, it was believed.

DUCE, STALIN TABOO

Some observers pointed out, however, that Mussolini might not be acceptable to England as a mediator while the French would not favor Soviet Dictator Stalin.

This, according to these circles, appeared to leave President Roosevelt as a leader of a neutral power acceptable to all sides should be tender his good offices.

In this connection, great interest was displayed in Berlin over the American Senate debate on revision of the neutraltiy act.

It was pointed out that Hitler might be receptive to a mediation offer by the American President now because the automatic arms embargo, which indirectly benefits the Reich, has not yet been revoked by the American Congress.

Nevertheless, Hitler in his talk with Ciano was understood to have injected fresh life into the Rome-Berlin axis in view of a possible prolonged war.

MIGHT INVITE U. S.

The German ambassador to Rome, Hans Georg von Mackensen, was due in Berlin today from Rome. It was believed he may be bringing some personal message from Mussolini regarding a scheme for a peace conference that would be attended by Italy and Soviet Russia, Germany and the Anglo-French allies.

Later an invitation might also be extended to Turkey and the United States.

3 CHINESE VICTORIES OVER JAPS

HONGKONG, Oct. 2 (AP)—Several hundred casualties were reported today in the wake of a surprise Chinese attack on Japanese guard posts along Hongkong's mainland border.

Rain grounded Japanese planes and Japanese communications were disrupted. Chinese forces were reported to outnumber the Japanese ten to one and the Japanese situation was described by observers as precarious unless reinforcements arrive from Canton or Swatow.

Chinese dispatches from Changsha today said that the main Japanese force attacking the Hunan Province city had been repulsed 20 miles to the northeast with several thousand casualties and that another Japanese advance had been checked west of the Canton-Hankow railroad.

Today's Laugh: Estonia Thanks Reds for Grab

MOSCOW, Oct. 2 (AP)—Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff and Foreign Minister Karl Selter of Estonia today exchanged messages of thanks and congratulation over the Soviet-Estonian pacts concluded Sept. 28.

(A Soviet military and engineering delegation arrived in Tallinn to put into effect the pacts which gave Russia military and naval concessions in Estonia and provided for trade increases between the two nations.)

Selter thanked Molotoff, and through him Stalin, "for wise guidance in the political and economic negotiations" which brought agreements "aiming at further development of . . . peaceful collaboration."

In his reply Molotoff expressed his "conviction that our new agreement will create favorable opportunities for the development and flourishing life of the peoples of Estonia and the Soviet Union."

Britain Sings 'Hang Out Wash on Siegfried Line'

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP)—A catchy ditty—"We're Going to Hang Out the Washing on the Siegfried Line"—is being plugged in London night clubs and vaudeville as a successor to the World War song, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

With the tune reminiscent of "Pack up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," the words of the chorus go like this:

"We're going to hang out the
washing on the Siegfried line,
Have you any dirty washing, mother, dear?
We're going to hang out the
washing on the Siegfried line
'Cause the washing day is here.
Whether the weather may be wet
or fine,
We'll just rub along with a care.
We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried line
If the Siegfried line's still there."

The song was written by Michael Carr and Jimmy Kennedy, both of Irish extraction.

Thousands Ponder Walsh 'Neutral' Talk

As battle lines were being drawn in Washington today for the momentous debate on altering present neutrality laws, thousands of Massachusetts residents pondered the speeches of United States Senators Walsh and Wheeler urging retention of the existing embargo.

To some 9000 persons on Boston Common, Sen. Walsh branded as "honest but fallacious" arguments of proponents of the "cash and carry" brand of neutrality championed by President Roosevelt.

In Hudson nearly 20,000 braved heavy rainfall to hear Montana's Wheeler plead for the endangered lives of American youth and the fate of this nation facing a pathway to war.

READS LODGE TELEGRAM

After reading telegrams of support from Senators Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. and Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Sen. Walsh declared:

"We have assembled in the name of peace. We have assembled as Americans. We are here not to help Europe, but to serve America. Our sympathies, our hopes and our prayers are for America. Fear also brings us here. It is the spectre of war. It is the fear that America may, by act of her officials, be injected into the hellish slaughter of human beings now raging in Europe.

"What is this official act that we fear? It is a proposal to turn about face, reverse our present neutrality policies and enter into economic entanglements with the belligerents in Europe. It is a proposal to change a 'thou shall not' policy of selling arms and munitions of war, to a policy of 'thou shall.' It is to change a policy of we 'forbid' to a policy of we 'permit.'

CALLED "OVERT ACT"

"The Congress is asked to perform an overt act, to declare to this mad world that we will hereafter in an official way give practical aid and assistance to the belligerents at war, knowing that only one side can be our customers.

"To my mind the repeal of the arms embargo at this time is a direct assault upon one group of belligerents and is in fact deliberately so intended. It will cause great resentment—resentment that has not heretofore been manifest. It will in my judgment result in our direct involvement in the war, for it is a positive unneutral act that bears all the germs of war breeding."

SIX HURT IN CRASH—When the auto in which they were riding with three others skidded and crashed into the Elevated structure on Atlantic ave., Boston, Mrs. Mary Baglio of Putnam st., East Boston, and her two children, Ella, 5 (left), and John, 4 months, were cut and bruised. They're shown above at their home. Also hurt were Mrs. Nellie Jambiano, 46, Jennie Barravecchio, 71, and the driver, Angelo Barravecchio.

AFL BACKS F. D.'S CASH-CARRY PLAN

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (INS)—Support for President Roosevelt's "cash and carry" neutrality was pledged today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor while delegates to the annual convention of the Federation shouted their approval.

"The President has said that the 'cash and carry' plan would serve more than ever to keep this nation out of war," Green told the delegates in his keynote speech.

"We are willing to accept his word and give him our support with the understanding that legislation passed is for the purpose of keeping the United States of America out of the European war."

THUNDERING CLOSE

Leading up to a thundering close in his remarks on the European war and the position of the United States relative to it, Green said:

"We move and work in the lengthening shadows of devastation and cruel war. But we are determined that we shall maintain our equilibrium and never be moved by war psychology. We will exercise self-control and discipline while striving for peace here in America.

"We are a peace-loving people and the sentiment for peace is no more pronounced in any group than in the officers of the American Federation of Labor and their families.

"We recall how we were drawn into the European conflict of two or more decades ago. We entered that conflict inspired by high ideals and lofty aims to save world for democracy.

"Lo and behold—after the war when 2,000,000 or more of our boys had made the trip across the ocean, many of them to be buried in foreign lands, we were disillusioned.

"What was settled by that war?

"Did it serve to end wars?

"The answer comes from Europe now.

"If the bodies and services of our young menand our old men too—are needed to defend American democracy, then I say we will give evrey life and every man avallable for tse service.

"But I say we will not shed one single drop of blood on foreign soil in European war."

THIEF AND BANDIT SUSPECT PUT IN POLICE LINEUP

At police headquarters today the lineup presented a little cross section of society, ranging from a gunman to a trusted finance company employe.

Afterward in municipal court Walter B. Wright, 48, pleaded guilty to four charges of larceny from the f[illegible] nance company, totaling $1,693, and was given a year in the House of Correction.

He told Judge Elijah Adlow he wanted the matter disposed of speedily, and Judge Adlow concurred, stating that if there was no chance for restitution there was no necessity for "piling up more complaints."

John Dirring

Police had said the larcenies were still under investigation and probably would total $20,000.

Six victims of three holdups identified John Dirring, 24, of Blossom st, West End, in the lineup while Dirring gloweringly "declined to comment."

Reminded by police that when arrested Saturday at Boston Fish Pier he had admitted participation in a $115 holdup at Charlesbank Homes, Inc., Charles st, Dirring said:

"If I said anything like that I must have been in a trance."

He is held for another lineup tomorrow, charged with being in the Charlesbank holdup, during which he allegedly bludgeoned Mrs. Elsie Jackson, a clerk on the head with a revolver.

She identified him today and so did Miss Jeannette McKenzie who grappled with one of the bandits.

Peter Charlos, 24, and Peter Alexzos, 40, both of Ruggles st, Roxbury, identified Dirring as one of two bandits who robbed the United Diner, Columbus ave, Roxbury of $61 last Wednesday.

Identification was also made by Max Richmond of Congress ave and Abrahim Rich of Central ave both Chelsea, who said Dirring was the bandit who robbed a Shawmut ave, Chelsea store of $200.

In the lineup was a 24-year-old Dorchester man nationally-known middleweight fighter of a decade ago but now claiming to be a realtor.

He denied having stabbed two Boston City Hospital attendants during a fight at Blue Hill ave and Morton st Mattapan, in a quarrel over three hospital nurses.

New Double Murder On 'Mystery Island'

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP)—Desolate "Duck Island," a stretch of land along the Delaware river once used by a novelist as a setting for a murder mystery story, was combed today by police seeking clues to the perpetrator of the second double slaying there in less than a year.

Pemberton Wenner, a Trenton junk collector, who found an artificial lamb while scouring the "island" a few days ago, saw a woman's leg protruding from a heap of paper yesterday and thinking he had made a similar discovery pulled aside the paper.

What he saw was the body of Mrs. Katherine Werner, 36, mother of two children, her head crushed and her body peppered with shotgun wounds.

He told police he saw next an old sedan parked nearby and in the rear seat discovered the body of Frank Casper, 28, father of a five year old boy.

Not far from where the bodies were found a 16-year-old girl and her young married escort were murdered Nov. 8 by a shotgun wielder. Police conceded there was a possibility the same slayer was responsible for both double tragedies. The first has not been solved.

Chief of Hamilton Township Police Richard P. Brettell said he had no lead to follow. He said his department had learned the couple killed yesterday were neighbors whose children played together. He said Casper had taken Mrs. Werner shopping. Several purchases, apparently made by the woman, were scattered around the death car.

Chief Brettell fixed the time of the shooting at 2 a. m. yesterday. He said both bodies were clothed fully and reported a medical examination had not determined whether Mrs. Werner had been attacked.

Deputy County Physician David A. Fluck said Casper, an auto mechanic, was killed by a shot fired from close range into the right side of [illegible] as she apparently had [illegible] away

PRESS SCHOOL HIKE FIGHT

Eddie Barry, 13, and his brother, George, 11, may grow up to be bankers, governors or congressmen but they never can brag at after dinner speeches about how many miles they walked to get an education.

That seemed more certain than ever today as their seats at the Whittemore School remained vacant and their determined parents announced plans to fight a court edict forcing them to walk a mile and a half to school.

While Eddie and George played at home, their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Barry of Fern st., Waltham, battled on two fronts to escape adhering to the order of Judge Frederic Crafts.

Barry, Sr., sought help from the Boston Legal Aid Society for legal representation in Waltham court when the case comes up again Wednesday. Mrs. Barry announced she would visit the school board at tonight's meeting in an effort to have the boys transferred to a nearer school.

In an earlier appearance before Judge Crafts, the jurist said his own 10-year-old son walked two and a half miles to school and the Barry boys would have to conform to school regulations or their parents must take the "consequences."

More determined than ever that her sons will not eat cold lunches and walk the mile and a half through winter storms, Mrs. Barry declared:

"I won't send them. It's too far for them to walk and I will fight this action to the highest court."

Tobin Battles Gas Rate Boost

Mayor Tobin returned from Washington today and immediately conferred with Corporation Counsel Henry Parkman, Jr., and some of his law department associates.

They started to map out a fight against the increased illuminating gas rates for Boston which became effective yesterday.

Mayor Tobin indicated that the city probably will take the fight into Supreme Court.

"We have not yet learned," he said, "the cost of the gas purchased by the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. The Boston company does not produce its own gas and our first job is to determine the cost of the gas they buy.

"It is up to the Boston company to prove that this is a just rate. The company is entitled only to a fair return on its investment."

Girls, Here's Your Chance; And He Cooks!

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 2 (AP)—Ohio's matrimonial bargain for today appeared to be the young man who put himself on the market with this advertisement in a Steubenville newspaper:

"I am 29 years of age and am willing to marry any girl or woman who can put me back on my feet until I can get a job to support her. I do not drink, chew tobacco, smoke or gamble. I can cook and do housework."

HASSETT, BUCKLEY TAKE OATH—During ceremonies at the Federal Building in which he was sworn in as U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue, Thomas B. Hassett (left) of Fitchburh, administers oath to Thomas H. Buckley of Abington, as his assistant.

Hassett Takes Oath of Office

In his flower-banked office in the Federal Building, Thomas B. Hassett was formally sworn in today as collector of internal revenue for the New England district.

Acting collector for the past year, Hassett, a "career man" of more than 20 years service in the department, was administered the oath by Hugh McIntyre of his office.

And as soon as he had received kisses of congratulation from Mrs. Hassett and his daughter, Helen G. Hassett, the collector crossed the hall and swore in his new assistant former State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley of Abington.

Officials from the Internal Revenue and other departments in the Federal Building thronged the two offices for the ceremonies. Among those who watched the two officials take their oaths of office were U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon and his staff, Postmaster Peter F. Tague, and Assistant Collector of the Port Owen P. McKenna.

BOY, 7, IN OPEN REBELLION AS FAMILY TRIES NAZI DIET

experience will help him to that job he has been seeking for a year—he's had two years at Northeastern University, and, up until a year ago, never earned less than $45 to $60 a week—is pretty philosophical about it. He's a little fearful that the boys down in the election office at City Hall, where he's got a part time job, will josh him a little, but he's willing to take it.

"It isn't much we can do," he has said, "but if we can show everyone in Boston just how hard war is, we'll not be doing it in vain."

Mrs. Hann is eager and enthusiastic. She has another son, Leslie, Jr., who is only 12 now, but she is deeply fearful that a time might come when he would have to go to war. Thelma, 13, is frankly enjoying herself, as is Gladys, 10.

Sunday dinner was pretty trying, however, with a lot of boiled potatoes made into a kind of a make-shift salad, with onions, two frankfurters apiece, a lot of dry bread with no butter and with nothing to drink but skimmed milk.

Meat, butter and fats are the principal problem. Only one pound, one ounce of meat has been allotted to each of the six members of the family.

LIGHT ON BUTTER

Of butter, for a whole week, each member is entitled to three ounces. Two ounces of lard, and four ounces of margarine, and two ounces of cheese are other shares. Just try and figure out how far three ounces of butter goes! Sugar, at eight ounces per person, is not too bad. The food chart for each for the week accompanies this article.

As a matter of fact, according to Dr. Charles H. Kelley, of 36 Hancock st., an instructor at Tufts Medical School, the diet isn't too deficient of necessary elements. Doctor Kelley, who is supervising the test, is working out the whole diet on the basis of heat units, calories, energy units and the like.

"On the face of it," he said, "the only deficiency immediately apparent is of vitamin A, which is very important anyway. Lack of vitamin A tends to make people conscious of night blindness, but there is but little other effect."

Doctor Kelley's analysis of the entire diet will be in tomorrow's article.

He checked the physical condition of all the family members Saturday before the test, which began at breakfast Sunday morning, and found them all to be in good physical condition. Here are their weights and heights:

Leslie Hann, the father: Aged 35, height 5 feet 10 inches, weight 162 pounds.

Mrs. Jeanette Hann, aged 32, height 5 feet 4 inches, weight 98 pounds. Mrs. Hann is a little on the light side, but Doctor Kelley explained that it is probably due to the fact that she is of that light type.

Thelma, aged 13, height 5 feet 1 inch, weight 73 pounds, a little on the light side.

Leslie, Jr., aged 12, 4 feet 10 inches tall, fairly developed and not too well nourished. Leslie, it should be explained, was ill last year.

Gladys, aged 10, 4 feet 7 inches tall, weight 64 pounds, and in good condition.

Theron, aged 7, 3 feet 11 inches tall, weight 49 pounds, and in excellent condition.

Doctor Kelley's blood tests and other material will be told in subsequent articles.

Just how much good there is in the Nazi "iron ration" will be explained in tomorrow's article in The Boston American.

Russia Eyes Latvia Ports; Envoy Lands

MOSCOW, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Latvian foreign minister, William Munters, and two secretaries of the Latvian foreign trade commission landed at the Moscow airport at 5:15 p. m. (9:15 a. m. EST) today. They were met by foreign office officials and the staff of the Latvian legation.

The Latvian legation said merely that Munters was here "to clear up the situation created in the Baltic by Soviet-German and Soviet-Estonian pacts."

Latvia, which has excellent harbors, some fortified, on the Gulf of Riga and on the Baltic, provides a natural trade outlet for Russian shipments to the West.

Unofficial reports from abroad said that Russia had shifted 20 divisions of troops from the Estonian border to the Latvian frontier, but there was no confirmation of these rumors here.

Nazis Say Last Poles Surrender

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—The German supreme army command today issued the following communique:

"Yesterday forenoon the first German troops moved into Warsaw without incident. The occupation of Praga (a Warsaw suburb) was completed yesterday.

"The last point of Polish resistance, the fortified Hela peninsula, surrendered unconditionally yesterday before an attack prepared jointly by the army and navy even could be carried out.

"The garrison of 52 officers, among whom was the Polish navy chief, Rear Admiral von Unruh, and 4000 men will surrender arms this afternoon.

"In the west, there was merely local artillery and reconnoitering activity. A British scouting plane was shot down east of Paderborn."

American Sees Ark Royal Safe

LONDON, Oct. 2 (INS)—Hints broadcast by the German radio that the new British aircraft carried Ark Royal had been sunk were "definitely disproved" by an American observer today, according to the British ministry of information.

United States Naval attache Alexander Kirk paid an official visit to the British home fleet over the week-end, it was announced, inspecting various vessels and attending a church parade, Sunday morning aboard the Ark Royal.

Kirk's visit showed that all vessels and capital ships of the home fleet were undamaged, and that there were no signs of casualties.

SEA RAIDER SINKS SHIP FAR SOUTH

sent to the bottom since the beginning of the war.)

The attack on the Clement was interpreted here as a German move to reopen a World War phase of sea attack. Starting early in 1916, the Moewe, converted from a cargo boat to an auxiliary cruiser, ran the British blockade, sank or captured 60,000 tons of Atlantic shipping and was responsible for sending 42 allied vessels to the bottom. Another World War raider was the German cruiser Emden, finally sunk off Cocos Island.

The See Adler of Capt. von Luckner carried out similar raids after slipping through the blockade line disguised as a Norwegian lumber schooner.

She ranged far into the Pacific before she broke her back on a reef in the Society Islands.

The Clement's attacker was believed by some to have been either a cruiser or a "pocket battleship." However, Reuters (British news agency) dispatches from Durban told of operations by an unidentified armed raider off the east coast of South America.

Sinking of the Clement was the first recorded instance of a British ship being sunk in south Atlantic waters since the war began, and the first sunk since the Germans started their unrestricted warfare against merchant craft.

Sunken Clement's 'Crew Reported Safe in Port

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 2 (AP)—The crew of the British freighter Clement which was sunk off the Brazilian coast was reported today to have reached the city of Maceio.

These reports said the attack on the freighter took place off the Brazilian town of Pedras, in the State of Alagoas, a short distance northeast of Maceio.

The captain of the Swedish passenger ship Argentina, which arrived in Rio de Janeiro yesterday, said he saw a German cruiser headed in the direction of Africa when he was nearing Recife (Pernambuco)

Shortly afterward, he related, he saw a British freighter sinking and then a German submarine passed by. Like the cruiser, the submarine was headed east.

(The Booth American Line, owners of the Clement, said in New York that the freighter carried a crew of 49. She left Recife (Pernambuco) last Friday for Bahia. Maceio is about 300 miles northeast of Bahia.)

German Liner May Be Converted Sea Raider

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 2 (AP)—Shipping circles here, speculating on the identity of the German raider which sank the British freighter Clement, recalled today that at least half a dozen German merchantmen have left Brazilian and Argentine ports since the war began and are still unreported.

Among these was the speedy liner Cap Norte.

Ask Embargo Repeal As Aid to Neutrality

and the galleries were full to the walls. Thousands, unable to get into the chamber, crowded the hallways and formed queues at the doors in the faint hope that they might get inside. Many members of the House having the privilege of the Senate floor lined the walls.

Faces in the diplomatic gallery remained stiffly impassive when Pittman turned to the threat of unrestricted warfare.

". . . Is there any doubt," he said, "that if Germany, under its contention that it cannot safely search and seize contraband on American vessels, will eventually pursue exactly the same policy as it pursued in March, 1917?"

It was then that unrestricted warfare, which finally led the United States into the World War, was launched.

"Is there any doubt," Puttman continued, "that if the war lasts long enough, and the situation of countries becomes desperate enough, they will resort to any form of destruction of contraband and vessels carrying contraband to their enemy?"

POLITICS OUT WINDOW

Before Pittman began speaking both Democratic and Republican leaders promised co-operation to keep the historic neutrality debate on an orderly plane. Both disclaimed political partisanship in the battle.

olUlykzm...taoYY-oaraOspades'Tt tan

Pittman then gained recognition from the Vice-President and began his detailed defense and outline of the cash-and-carry bill.

"In my opinion," Pittman declared, "this is the most important legislation that has ever been proposed to Congress or ever enacted into law for the purpose of keeping us out of a uropean war.

"If our vessels cannot carry on commerce with the belligerents and the belligerent powers know it, there will be little excuse, if any, for the destruction of American vessels on the high seas with the inevitable loss of the lives of our seamen.

"Certainly, the peace-loving Senators who oppose the proposed substitute (law) are in favor of such mandatory legislation."

DENIES NEUTRALITY REPEAL

Pittman bluntly denied claims of opponents that the pending bill endangered neutrality because it repeals the arms embargo. He said there were many misunderstandings over the legislation, and that some persons believed erroneously that it "repealed neutrality."

"The foreign relations committee," he said, "are not only opposed to repealing the present neutrality legislation but they propose to re-enact it in a very much more mandatory and restrictive manner.

"We have re-enacted the section of the old law which expired on May 1, 1939, by its own terms as the requirement that the title and possession of property before it is exported shall be divested by the American citizen.

"We have strengthened this provision by adding thereto that any loss incurred by any citizen, either in the sale or transfer of the property, shall not be a basis for a claim to be made by the United States government.

BARS U. S. SHIPS

"But your committee . . . have gone much farther than that. The old law with regard to 'carry' which expired on the first day of May, 1939, vested in the President the discretion to determine whether American vessels should be prohibited from carrying any articles and materials to belligerents, except the few manufactured articles listed in the existing law as arms, ammunition and implements of war.

"In this proposed law we have provided that American vessels may not carry any cargoes at all to belligerents."

Seek to Raise Pole Army Here

PARIS, Oct. 2 (AP)—General Wladislaw Sikorski, new premier of the Polish government in exile declared today he hoped to raise an army of 200,000 Poles in the United States and Canada to fight against Germany.

"There are 5,000,000 Polish citizens in Canada and the United States," Gen. Sikorski said in an informal interview.

"These Poles are our last card and we are going to play it.

"We hope to raise from eight to ten divisions of from 15,000 to 20,000 men each in Canada and the United States."

HOW CHEF FED POISON TO 300

By GEORGE CLARKE

Years pass. Memory fades. And there are but few now who remember one of the most amazing newspaper stories ever to 'break'—the poisoning by an anarchist of the soup at Chicago's banquet to welcome its new archbishop—he, who, as Cardinal Mundelein, died today.

Archbishop Mundelein, no cardinal then, had been greeted by thousands when he arrived to take over the archdiocese.

Led by Governor Edward F. Dunne, and with Mayor William Hale Thompson a part of it, Chicago determined to do him proper honor. Dr. John B. Murphy, one of the country's greatest surgeons, was chairman of the committee.

ALL IN AGONY

And so they gathered, three hundred strong, at Chicago's University Club for a banquet to honor him.

First came a course of hors d'oeuvres. Then the soup—chicken soup—and a moment later three hundred of Chicago's most prominent citizens writhed in agony.

Stunned and staggered they spread out on the banquet hall. Some lay on the floor. Others groaned on couches. All were deathly sick—all save the new archbishop and Governor Dunne.

Doctor Murphy gave a quick diagnosis. He said it was ptomaine poisoning.

ASSASSIN FLEES

All were taken home. Next day analysis disclosed enough arsenic in the soup to have killed an army. Ironically, it was too much poison to kill the 300. All it did was make all deathly ill.

Jean Crones, a Belgian chef, disappeared. One of the world's greatest manhunts was started for him. He was never found.

But, day after day, he wrote insulting, satiric letters to the Chicago newspapers. Jean was sorry, he said, they all hadn't died. He was an Anarchist and had tried to kill them all.

It is one of Chicago's unsolved crimes.

DIES IN SLEEP—All races and creeds today mourned the passing of His Eminence, George Cardinal Mundelein, in his Chicago home last night. The beloved prelate, who died in his sleep, is shown as personal representative of the Pope at New Orleans' Eucharistic Congress.

HENRY — The Genuine Thing

WARNS DISTRIBUTORS OF ECONOMIC SHAKEUP

Sweeping revision of the social-economic system which would drastically alter existing concepts of price, valuation and private property was urged here today by Harlow S. Person of New York, nationally known authority on business economics.

Speaking before the 11th Boston Conference on Distribution at the Hotel Statler, Person declared the development of new markets for the nation's goods essential, and asserted that "market development possibilities growing out of territorial expansion have been exhausted."

PROBLEM ACUTE

Despite "spurious, war-stimulated business activity," he said, the problem remains acute. Unless it is solved, he warned the war period may be followed by a renewed war-born depression.

"Instead of the addition of new territories, there must be discoveries of new utilities created at diminishing costs of human labor to be taken over into collective ownership and promptly and smoothly integrated into an expanding volume of widely distributed real industrial income," he declared.

Such a process, Person told the gathered representatives of business and industry from all sections of the country, will require modification "of many cherished concepts we have been taught to believe were established by natural law."

OPPOSE "PRESSURE"

Col. Robert A. Roos, president of Roos Bros., California specialty stores, reported the results of a survey of 64 organizations representing the nation's distributive industry, declaring the industry to be divided on the question of government in business, but united in opposing "pressure group" politics and tax-free cooperatives.

He recommended establishment in the Department of Commerce of a "central control tower," to be manned by active business leaders perhaps serving as "dollar-a-year men."

"There should be a place," he told the meeting, "in which the conflicting objectives of the various sections of the industry can meet and compose themselves, in sympathetic co-operative experiment, where plans can be tested out and adopted voluntarily after they have proved themselves workable."

Open Petzold 'Theft Ring' Trial

Paul A. Petzold of Reading, former Boston patrolman, who named three other Boston police officers in a "robbery ring" when he was indicted for breaking and entering a Back Bay store, went on trial with six other men before Judge Paul G. Kirk in Suffolk superior court today.

The drawing of a jury was begun immediately after the case was called.

On a count of conspiracy to steal from the store, being tried with Petzold are William Gillar of Chelsea, Frank "Chick" Williams of Revere, Albert "The Cat" Abrams of Chelsea, and Nick Geraigiry of Revere. Abrams is now serving time in the House of Correction, the other three in State's Prison.

The quintet are also charged with breaking and entering the store, and with larceny of $2329.30.

Petzold, Williams, Gillar, Abrams, and Guy Marcucella of East Boston are charged with conspiracy to steal from Julius Kalman, rent collector, and with armed robbery of $200 from him.

The cases involving Petzold and the other police officer will be tried later.

2 Found Guilty In Bribe Case

Found guilty of attempting to obstruct justice, Lewis Marco of Leyden st., Medford, and Gaetano de Lucia of Woodlawn ave., Dorchester, were given one year suspended sentence each in the House of Correction and two years probation by Judge Adlaw in municipal court today.

The men were arrested by Back Bay police, Sept. 11, after they attempted to induce Arthur Vasili of Appleton st., South End, not to identify a colored woman who had been charged with robbing him of $580.

The officers were hiding in a closet of Vasili's apartment when the visitors tried to make the deal, police said.

Milady's Beauty Cost Is Put at $200,000,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—Milady's beauty is costing her more than $200,000,000 this year, Miss Frances Martell, secretary of the American Cosmeticians National Ass'n reported.

It's costing her $113,000,000 just to keep her hair waved.

Some 35,000,000 women who beat a path to 76,624 beauty shops in the United States, she said, also are spending during 1939: $25,000,000 for hair cuts, $20,000,000 for facial treatments, $17,000,000 for hair tinting and dyeing, $15,000,000 for manicures, $13,000,000 for cosmetics, $4,000,000 for scalp treatments and $2,000,000 for shampoos.

Jack Hamilton Has Tough Job

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Jack Hamilton has a chance of abolishing party lines if he can convince Jim Farley that the last election was a tie game.

Being a politician himself Jim knows that a gift-horse usually has a sponge up his nose. And the Democrats don't believe in crossing bridges until the WPA builds 'em.

Right now the Democrats are in the driver's seat. And it doesn't look like Jack can rent desk room on Jim's lap.

ANTICS IN FREAK GARB LAUNCH B. U. HAZINGS

If you should see some otherwise lovely co-eds bedecked with stuffed toys, men's neckties, ropes around their waists, tin cups, old shoes and hairbrushes—well, don't be frightened.

And if, accompanying them, you should see sturdy youths wearing hairnets, bright ribbons on their trousers, and gaily flourishing toothbrushes—don't head for that psychopathic ward!

It's just the old college tradition of "hazing" at Boston University's college of music, where, starting today, embryonic musicians will have to comply with these rules or suffer, "a posteriori," the consequences.

Upon the peremptory request of upperclassmen, freshmen will have to interrupt any and all social activities to sing the University Hymn, according to Alice Cornell, sophomore chairman of the three-day hazing period.

But good little freshmen, who do what they're told, will be "unhazed" and rewarded at a student government party to be held at the college lounge Wednesday night under the chairmanship of Robert Wilder of Gardner, president.

Owner of 'Lost Time' Is Hunted

Like many another fireman, Ladderman Timothy J. Donovan of the Harvard ave., Allston, fire station had "time on his hands" today. The "time" was a wrist watch which a passerby who was affected by something he ate—or drank, thrust into Donovan's hands as he was passing the station, with the command: "Hold this." The stranger disappeared. Donovan held the watch for some hours and then turned it over to police to trace ownership.

GOOD YEAR ASSURED, INSURANCE MEN TOLD

The 155 member companies of the Insurance Advertising Conference did a $3,500,000,000 business last year, and will do as much or more in the 12 months to come, Raymond C. Dreher, president of the organization, declared today in his annual report to delegates at Hotel Statler.

Meeting in co-operation with the National Ass'n of Insurance Underwriters, about 500 mebers, company officials and their families registered at convention headquarters.

Stressing the importance of advertising and public relations, President Dreher told the gathering that the past year has seen marked progress in achieving closer relationships with the National Underwriters' Ass'n and the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

"One of the high-spot accomplishments of the committee was a meeting in New York when advertising men and executives in charge of the advertising of member companies of the National Board of Fire Underwriters met with members of the National Board of the I. A. C. to hear a detailed presentation of the board's current public relations program," reported Dreher, who is advertising manager of the Boston Insurance Co.

KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR
—Be Neutral—

FOR AN EXPOSITION of IDEAL AMERICANISM and one that embodies the unspoken thought and prayers of 95 per cent of all true Americans at this moment the platform and the report of the National Defense Committee of the American Legion convention, at Chicago, can be recommended as documents that should not only be carefully studied but which should also be ACTED UPON.

Re-affirming its faith in the orderly processes of democracy and the authority of the will of the people as embodied in Congress, the Legion insists:

"That Congress should remain in session indefinitely during the present grave crisis."

Taking its stand against our entry into the criminally conceived European war while demanding that our interests should be protected, the Legion affirms:

"That President Roosevelt and Congress should do everything possible to prevent the United States from going to war and at the same time preserve the sovereignty of this country."

To preserve and defend, if necessary, that neutrality the platform of the Legion demands:

"That armed forces of the United States should be expanded IMMEDIATELY to maintain American neutrality and to insure against aggression."

Nor did the Legion leave these sound declarations hanging in the air as mere abstractions.

20 YEARS AGO!
Legionnaires Remembe.

The Defense Committee's report, adopted without dissent, put teeth in its defense demands by calling for:

1—War equipment to equip 1,000,000 men for a year.

2—A FULL-STRENGTH Army, Navy and National Guard.

3—Modernization of the present lamentably inadequate Army equipment.

4—A Navy SECOND TO NONE, with additional naval bases at Guam and Wake islands in the Pacific.

5—Continuation of the present program of aviation expansion.

6—Rehabilitation of privately owned ships to meet any emergency, particularly on the Pacific.

7—A strict ban on the exportation of helium for "any purpose whatsoever."

8—The creation of a National Maritime Board with the same power over maritime workers that the National Mediation Board now holds over railway workers.

9—That only native-born or COMPLETELY NATURALIZED citizens be permitted to represent the workers in all maritime disputes.

THIS WHOLE PROGRAM, from beginning to end, is a superb document of vigor, restraint and democratic principles.

It is a design for AMERICAN living, for AMERICAN action and AMERICAN defense in a world that has forsaken all paths of sanity, decency and respect for human rights.

It anchors our great free democracy to the rocks of PEACE, NEUTRALITY, PREPAREDNESS and the first and last hope of our institutions—the Congress of the United States, which is, and must be now, as it has always been in the past, our court of last resort in matters that concern the destinies and lives of Americans.

The Legion KNOWS WAR.

It demands PEACE.

The Legion KNOWS EUROPE—many of its members lie under crosses in France.

It demands that we STAY HERE.

Its solemn declaration of principles should have a greater weight today with the American people than any other body of men, for—

It is SOLDIERS who are speaking to us—

And these soldiers have two words of advice for us:

PEACE and DEFENSE.

Golden Hours

HAPPY are childhood hours—they pass . . . so swiftly as, day after day . . . unnoticed at the time, alas! . . . they vanish silently away.

A few linger in memory . . . but others merge into a blur . . . and not until too late do we . . . recall how happy we once were.

And what would we not give today . . . on some good fairy what gifts shower . . . if there could be another May . . . another golden childhood hour.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

AT THE OUTSET of the new war in Europe, civilization is in an absolutely fantastic predicament. Peace, prosperity and plenty were in man's grasp, with only a little wisdom—bare intelligence, actually. Yet we seem bent on destruction.

Science, which should have been our good fairy, has become our evil genius.

Perhaps the most sinister examples of all perversion of divine gifts are those myriad death-birds shrieking across the fall skies over all Europe these days.

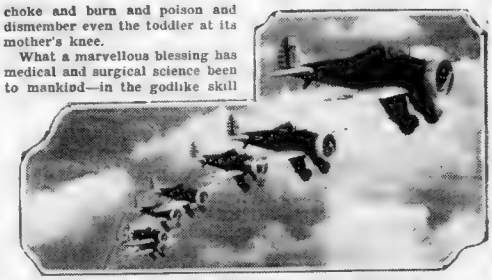
The knowledge of dynamics and mechanics, the wizardy of electricity and internal combustion, the skill in wood-working and metal-forging that have gone into the making of an airplane give the right to call its builders supermen.

WHAT a glorious ,blessing science could have been to all mankind; what an instrument for better acquaintance, always the precursor of better relations and thus of peace!

The airplane, alone, not to mention radio, should have placed man not on the slope but the towering crest of Mount Olympus.

What purpose is it used for? To drop bombs, this very hour, upon defenseless, helpless men, women and little children. To drop bombs that shatter and choke and burn and poison and dismember even the toddler at its mother's knee.

What a marvellous blessing has medical and surgical science been to mankind—in the godlike skill which it has achieved in holding life in the ageing, and repairing broken and failing bodies.



DEATH BIRDS FLY AGAIN OVER EUROPE
"Our Power Greater Than Our Wisdom"

At the same time chemical science has achieved an even greater skill in shattering and poisoning them, with the result that, in this new world war, civilization is again the spectacle of the resources of medical science being used to patch together broken bodies, in order that the resources of chemical science might be used to blow them to pieces again.

OUR POWER is greater than our wisdom. Among the minor items of man's conquests are magical machines and devices by which we talk across continents and oceans, listen to Big Ben or a savage tom-tom signalling the news in the jungles of the Congo; travel on the ocean or under.

There are photographs that speak and sing; X-rays with which we photograph our bones. Crops are ripened by electricity. Roads are made of cotton and rubber. It doesn't hurt any longer—or need not—to have your teeth filled.

But with all his conquests there is one enemy, and the worst, man has failed to subjugate—the enemy within himself. We are masters of the world, on the verge this instant of committing suicide through sheer inability to control the powers science has given to us.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Since certain gentlemen saw fit to take me up a short time ago on a few words, which I will agree were open to varied interpretation, I must record that as usual the miracle may be an accomplished fact!

I said that the President thought the old barn at Hyde Park could be remodeled for a sum far smaller than the rest of us thought adequate.

Well, ingenuity has found a way whereby the barn may be transformed into a two-family dwelling, and the sum which I thought too small will amply cover this. So my husband has the laugh on me. It isn't the first time that has happened!

I can't help, however, being much flattered that this simple diary should draw so much attention, from such important gentlemen, even on an unimportant item.

I TOLD YOU that I would give you more detail of how I spent my day. First, I went up to the Manhattan Storage house to see a most interesting collection of American Historical portraits belonging to the estate of the late Mr. Percy Rockefeller. There I was pleased to meet the members of the Washington Fine Arts Commission.

Since Mr. Moore has retired, I have not had the pleasure of coming in contact with the present chairman, and the other members of the commission have always been vague, but very important, figures in the background, as far as I was concerned.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
Has Laugh on First Lady

To find our friend, Mr. Paul Manship, is one of the vague figures gives me great confidence, for I have always looked upon this commission with much awe! The reason for this is that they can at any time step in and object to whatever changes I might want to make in the formal rooms at the White House!

They are much interested in this collection because there has long been a hope that somewhere in Washington there might be established a national portrait gallery. Here is the nucleus of a marvelous collection.

I WAS FASCINATED by the paintings of George Washington's ancestors and enjoyed all the others, many of which were very unfamiliar. I confess to finding, with rather a shock, one of George Washington himself with red hair. But I understand better why he held out at Valley Forge!

There is a portrait of Abraham Lincoln with a very wonderful expression, which must have been done toward the end of the Civil War because the suffering is so clearly marked. But I must stop, for there are too many of interest in this collection to enumerate them all.

In the afternoon I went to a reception given by the Women Sculptors and Painters and I wish I had had time to look at more of the work in the galleries which appeared so interesting. I love Brenda Putnam's contributions, which won the popular prize for sculpture. I think she grows stronger and surer every year and I hope she knows how much real inspiration her work gives to some of us.

ROCKEFELLER SON DEFIES DANGER

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Winthrop Rockefeller this week sailed for Egypt and Iraq. The newspapers, which had received no advance warning of his trip, were surprised at the suddenness of his departure . . . As a matter of face, it's just a business trip. It was necessary for one representative of the Standard Oil Company of New York to make this voyage despite the danger of ocean travel. Winthrop was selected. "You've got to make your choice," his father said, "and decide whether you're a stockholder or an employe of Standard Oil." The popular and efficient Winthrop decided quickly. "Dad, I'm an employe," he said—and went.

HELEN HAYES

STAGE DEPT.: Pat Harrington, who is appearing in Helen Hayes' new show, was 52d Street's first war casualty. Harrington, who has been working at the 18 Club, discussed with Frankie Hyers, his colleague there, the inability of the Poles to resist the Nazi troops. Hyers resented it and swung—and revealed that he's Polish.

PROSPERITY DEPT.: An elderly lady presented herself at the "Yokel Boy" box office last week and asked whether the show is a hit . . . She was assured that the receipts were extremely satisfactory . . . "Good," she beamed. "I'm the mother of Lew Brown, who produced this very successful show. I've never seen it. I'd like to see it tonight" . . . "Madam," was the reply, "we're very sorry—but the show is so successful that there isn't an extra seat in the house."

HELP WANTED DEPT.: When George Abbott was casting his new show, "See My Lawyer," an old character actor applied for a job and was told to see Ezra Stone, who directed the play . . . The gray-haired actor went to the Abbott office, asked for Mr. Stone—and was brought to the 21-year-old Stone . . . The veteran glared at the boyish director, then turned to go and said: "When Shirley Temple is casting, I'll be back."

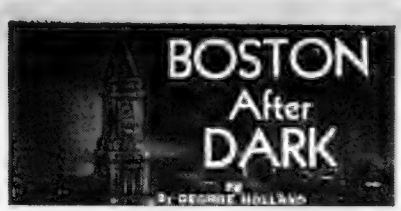
SOCIAL NOTES: Adolf Spreckels, who married Baroness von Romberg recently, had known his bride for almost eleven years . . . When they finally decided to get married, Spreckels attended to all the many details involved in an elopement to Reno . . . He chartered a 16-passenger plane for the trip, timed it so that they would arrive early in the morning, when no reporters would be present, and had a justice of the peace and two witnesses prepared and waiting . . . But, as in all stories, neither the bride nor the groom remembered to bring a wedding ring.



MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: Did you happen to "catch" that radio forum last night featuring a group of our better Senatorial minds—and if you did were you able to sleep? . . . If that was an accurate dress rehearsal of the big neutrality show which opens today in Washington, then there's one newspaper author who is suited perfectly to "cover" the Capitol this week . . . Bugs Baer . . . At times the debate was grade-B Amos and Andy.

SENATOR VAN NUYS was terrific . . . Twice he forgot which side he was on . . . He was very funny, too, when in dodging a tricky question by one of his brothers he courteously "deferred" to another of the boys, who, the Senator said, had a turn coming . . . His unforgettable contribution, however, was the word "preponderating" . . . If those babies vote the way they think, and they think the way they talk, there are two possible means of saving the country from catastrophe . . . One is the immediate conscripting of Kate Smith to be national sing-leader, with compulsory enrollment of all citizens and aliens in a choir with a one-song repertory . . . The song, of course, is "God Bless America," with an alternate verse permitting the optional "save" for "bless" . . . A more effective method of salvation lies in a mass-demand that this 'yere neutrality question be put to a referendum of the pee-pul.

MORE MUSINGS: Now that Russia has more lebensraum in the vicinity of what used to be Poland, isn't there a chance that a hundred-odd shiploads of unnaturalized fellow-travelers from America could be accommodated? . . . The voting members of the Communist Party can't be deported. They're legal . . . Which side, by the way, is the Abraham Lincoln Brigade joining up with this time? . . . The Hollywood Pinkos won't be able to give them any ambulances, because they have dates with Congressman Martin Dies . . . They should be getting their notices within a week.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Exclusive: William H. Flanagan, chairman of the South Boston Gymnasium Committee, has been told by Mayor Tobin, he says, that South Boston will get a $400,000 gymnasium as a contribution from the Hayden Foundation . . . Although Maestro Al Zimmerman will be the presiding genius of the new Zero Hereford nightclub, the room is part of the Fox and Hounds Club, a membership proposition . . . Lew Bonick, who played at the Mayfair for a dozen weeks last season, is holding down the bandstand of the Fox and Hounds other assembly room.

INVASION BY THE DEBS AND POST-DEBS of the Boston Rialto has become a reality . . . Three of the society kids (two of them from New York) will be yodeling in local nightclubs come Thursday . . . The latest recruit from the social register is Lois Ellman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Ellman of Scarsdale, N. Y. . . . Lois will do her stuff at Somerset's Balinese Room . . . There's a chance that Adelaide Moffett will slip over to the Somerset from the Ritz Roof, and that Virginia Phelan will leave her new mooring at Zero Hereford to greet Miss Ellman for her premiere.

WARNERS TO REMAKE 'DISRAELI'

By Louella O. Parsons

Laurence Olivier

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2 — Warner Bros. are remaking "Disraeli." Not the "Disraeli" you and I remember with the young George Arliss as Queen Victoria's prime minister, but the story on the young Disraeli. In fact there are three—one the boy, another the juvenile and then the young man becoming the great statesman. Two actors—one a boy and one a man, will portray the diplomat whose wise council to his queen has gone down in history.

The picture will be made as quickly as possible since it has a very timely subject dealing with the Russian and German situation at that period of English history. Michael Hogan, who wrote "Nurse Edith Cavell," has completed the script and Warners are trying to get one of three leading English actors, Brian Aherne, Laurence Olivier or Leslie Howard, as the star.

SOUNDS TO ME as if J. J. Shubert is planning a 100% movie cast for his musical, "Three Blind Mice." Remember this is the comedy Loretta Young made for 20th Century-Fox not so long ago. You may like to know that Simone Simon is headed for New York to play the lead. Mary Brian and Wilma Cox, once a Hal Roach comedy queen, are importantly cast.

ROSEMARY LANE

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD. Andrea Leeds has voted against playing opposite Gary Cooper in "The Outlaw." That's because she wants to marry Bob Howard Oct. 25 and she can not possibly get a picture made before that time. All of a sudden Andrea has decided that domesticity may be better than a movie career and she has asked Samuel Goldwyn for three months leave of absence. During that time she will decide whether she wants to watch the ponies run, keep house and go social with young Howard, whose parents own Seabiscuit, or whether she wants to be a movie star. Knowing something of these girls who find it difficult to settle down after being in the limelight, I would say Andra will be back before the three months expire.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Rosemary Lane-Buddy Westmore romance is heading toward the altar; Norma Talmadge and George Jessel started the reconciliation rumors all over again when they dined at the Troc but so far no truth in that gossip; cute bunch of youngsters headed by Jane Withers at a ringside table at the Cocoanut Grove celebrating the finish of Jane's last movie and Mary McCarty's sixteenth birthday.

DAILY STORY

First Love

IT WAS DURING my sophomore year in high school that I fell deeply in love with my English teacher.

He, too, was attracted toward me, professing his love by keeping me after class to discuss my compositions and to lend me books.

Of course, no one else knew of our secret little love affair or even suspected.

As he was a good friend of the family, he often came to the house to talk to my father and oldest brother.

ONE NIGHT when he came my family was out and I was sitting in the den studying. The radio was playing softly and the atmosphere was relaxing.

He sat on the couch beside me helping me with my studies.

Suddenly, he began to talk to me frankly, telling me how unhappy he was teaching school in a small town, telling me how much he wanted to go off in a tramp steamer and live a carefree life in Europe with someone young and understanding like me.

I was embarrassed and upset, wanting to tell him how much I loved him, afraid. But he, sensing my shyness, my adoration, took me firmly into his arms and kissed me gently, murmuring soft words into my ear. My fear left me and I told him I loved him.

We sat thus for about ten minutes, the radio still playing, he so gentle and adoring. Suddenly the radio was turned off abruptly and my oldest brother stood in the doorway, white and angry. The things my brother said cutting my pride, made the whole affair sordid and wrong. My English teacher left almost immediately.

AFTERWARDS Tom, my brother, sat there beside me and talked to me earnestly. He said that Mr. Carvin was insincere, insane to make love to a girl half his age. At the time I thought Tom didn't understand. I thought him cruel, brutal.

But as the year went on Mr. Carvin became engaged to a girl his own age whom he eventually married. Their life together was miserable as he was fickle and unstable.

Now I realize that Tom was right and I was in error.

I am having fun with boys my own age and am not getting serious with anyone, which policy I think is and always will be the best policy for high school boys and girls.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

IT'S QUEER how we humans twist our principles to fit our personal peeves. Take, for example, this question of CHIVALRY—HAS OR HASN'T IT A PLACE IN MODERN LIFE?

Recently, I put that question up to several million young Americans—all under 30—from every part, in every condition of American life. To my surprise, practically every masculine answer voiced the same attitude. Theoretically, they were for Chivalry 100 per cent. But with one unanimous hoot—they declared that CHIVALRY AND EQUALITY DON'T MIX!

Nor was their objection based merely on jobs. Their other expressions of equality were equally obnoxious. Competitive sports—mannish styles—professional careers—co-education—cigarettes and cocktails, however infrequent—all barred Miss America from the deference her mother and grandmother received.

THIS MIGHT have been expected from older gentlemen who had been reared in the Clinging Ivy Era. But here were thousands of intelligent, modern young men who have worked and played with girls on equal terms since birth—and they are as firmly convinced as any Victorian dandy that courtesy went out when suffrage came in!

Nor are these empty words. This prejudice has become one of the most vital issues of the day. It has developed into a guerilla warfare in every department of our life . . . it lies behind office feuds, family brawls and divorces.

CONSIDER, for example, that famous incident in which Sir Walter Raleigh spanned a mud-puddle with his bejeweled velvet coat so that his Queen's lovely feet might not be defiled. Was Queen Elizabeth any Frail Flower? She was not!

Busting conventions and beheading lovers were the best things Liz did. And it's a 100 to 1 shot that Walter doffed his coat not out of gallantry, but because he knew darned well that she'd yank it herself, and his neck with it, if he didn't!

There's the actual lowdown on that particular bit of Chivalry.

An there, I suspect, is the real reason for this modern masculine discontent. It isn't feminine spunk that the Boys resent so bitterly as the fact that THE GIRLS CAN'T KEEP IT TO THEMSELVES! Attie wouldn't mind his Aggie being such an Amazon—IF SHE WOULDN'T TELL THE WORLD!

'Shake Your Maracas'—Well, We Say You Will

By PEGGY DOYLE

If Producer George Abbott knows his musical groceries—and he's rather uncanny about picking hits in the embryo—the Rodgers-Hart tune, "Shake Your Maracas," will be on the tip of your tongue before the week reaches its maturity.

"Maracas," to straighten up any misunderstanding, are small gourds to you non-Mexicans. The song together with such potential favorites as "I Didn't Know What Time It Was" and "Spic and Spanish" will be heard for the first time in Beantown tonight when the Abbott production, "Too Many Girls," opens at the Shubert.

Richard Rodgers and Larry Hart, whose professional teaming has resulted in a succession of musical hits, did the songs. George Marion, Jr., successful Hollywood scenarist and son of the distinguished producer and actor, did the book.

Outside of revealing that most of the action takes place on Pottawattamie campus, that the 50-yard line is on the Mexican border and that the music has a rumba-conga accent, Mr. Marion preferred to keep the whole thing a surprise until tonight.

Reminded of those fabulous movie titles that frequently were a picture's sole selling-point in those golden days of 1925 and thereabouts, he said:

"They used to call me the bandaging department. You could cover up any mistake with a title. I used to do two or three for 52 weeks a year over a period of five years."

Pinned down to arithmetic, Mr. Marion admitted he collected $4000 a picture. Not bad, not bad.

"I was under contract to United Artists who sub-leased me to other studios. I used to work for three studios a day, most of my time being spent travelling from one to the other. Finally, Paramount, pointing out that I was ruining my health, suggested I work for them on a 50-picture-a-year basis."

Nora Ford Tops Columbia Bill

Ruled out of George Whites "Scandals," "bumps" are decidedly "in" as far as Manager Max Michaels' Columbia stage show is concerned.

Nora Ford

Nora Ford, who is Southern but not languorous, is introducing "bumps" this week in her special dance routine, which is the star feature of the current burlesque show, "Jitterbug Revue."

Overdue at the World's Fair titian-haired Nina Nixon is remaining a second week by popular demand, as is Evelyn Taylor, "glorified girl of burlesque."

Dowling Play Sale Opens

Seats go on sale today at the Plymouth Theater for "The Time of Your Life," William Saroyan's gay mad play being presented by the Theater Guild in association with Eddie Dowling.

Prices for the evening performances range from $1.10 to $2.75. Seats for the Thursday and Saturday matinees are from $1.10 to $2.20. "The Time of Your Life" will play a two-week engagement at the Plymouth Theater before it opens in New York.

Georgia Sothern At Old Howard

It should be a hot time in the Old Howard this week with the flame-topped Georgia Sothern, known on the burlesque circuit as "the human dynamo," the four-alarm sensation of the burlesque show, "World of Pleasure."

Georgia Sothern

"Slate" Taylor and Charles Taye top the comedy division, which includes Al Weber, dialectitian. In the beauty lineup are Betty Smith, Ermaine Parker, Marie Jameson, Marie and Martha Moore, Anne Vernon and the chorus of 30 song-and-dance girls. There are specialty acts by Starks and Dorn, dancers, Charles Schultz and Dudley Douglass, and the Vanderbilts in "Traprobatics."

Film features are "Straight, Place and Show," with the Ritz Brothers and Ethel Merman, and "We're Going to Be Rich," co-starring Victor McLaglen and Gracie Fields.

Friday's midnight show starts at 11:30 p. m.

Hollywood Notes

—By LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2—Now that "The Women" is such a hit at the box office M-G-M is going to try reverse angles and leave all the femmes out of "The Earl of Chicago."

With the exception of several close-ups of glamorous feminine legs to add excitement to the goings-on, Robert Montgomery's new picture has an all-male cast.

A line or two: Tom Mix couldn't get back from Sweden because he had his thoroughbred horses with him and wouldn't sail until they could get space for them on a boat. But he finally landed in New York breathing a sigh of relief at being home . . . Garbo's pictures are the hardest hit of all by the loss of the foreign market. "Madame Curie" was called off the studio has been up a tree trying to find a story for her.

Gayety Stars Gladys Clark

Another fugitive from the World's Fair amusement area is this week's headliner in a local burlesque revue. She is Gladys Clark, who is currently starring in "Hello, Beautiful," stage show at the New Gayety.

Gladys Clark

Miss Clark is reported as possessing in quantity beauty as as well as dancing talent. Another World's Fairest, Eleanor Dale, bedecks the show. She, dancing Ginger Rogers and Margie White are other holdovers from last week.

"Coo Coo" Morrison has a brand new batch of "nut" comedy; and Ruth Coburn has new songs.

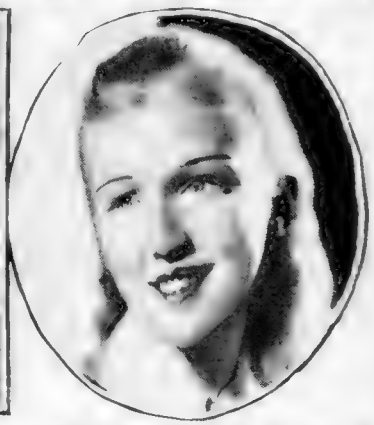
CORNELL COMEDY, ABBOTT MUSICAL PREMIERES TONIGHT

DIOSA COSTELLO aided by Desi Arnas, will introduce the rhumba and conga to Pottawalamie campus in "Too Many Girls," opening tonight at the Shubert.

FRANCIS LEDERER has the leading role opposite Katharine Connell in "No Time for Comedy," which opens a two-week engagement at the Wilbur tonight.



JULIE HAYDEN is featured in "The Time of Your Life" opening next Monday at the Plymouth.

Wilbur Offers Cornell; Musical at Shubert

By PEGGY DOYLE

Katharine Cornell in her first comedy, "No Time for Comedy," and "Too Many Girls," an Abbott musical with a definite story and music the South American way via Larry Hart and Richard Rodgers, provide tonight's big problem for a Hub firstnighter.

The Cornell show, which comes to the Wilbur tonight, closed the last week of her New York engagement last Saturday night with a gross business of $19,960, ending her run, incidentally, with one of the record weeks of her six-month New York stay.

Ever mindful of her road following, the Broadway engagement was terminated to permit the star time for a 17-week road tour that gets under way here tonight. At its conclusion, Miss Cornell will immediately launch plans for a new play, to be staged by Guthrie McClintic, her husband.

Mr. McClintic and S. N. Behrman, author of "No Time for Comedy," are arriving by plane this afternoon for tonight's opening. Appearing opposite Miss Cornell, playing a playwright's wise and charming actress-wife, is Francis Lederer, stage and screen star, as the playwright.

Pottawattamie College, mythical institution of learning with its 50-yard line on the Mexican border, is the locale for George Abbott's new musical comedy, "Too Many Girls," opening tonight at the Shubert.

Some favorites of last season are starred in "Too Many Girls." There are Marcy Wescott, lovely blonde singing star of "The Boys From Syracuse"; Mary Jane Walsh of "I'd Rather Be Right"; Richard Kollmar of "Knickerbocker Holiday," and Eddie Bracken, just back from a nation wide tour as the star of "What a Life."

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy which opened last Monday at the Plymouth to enormous business that continued throughout the week, goes into its second and final week tonight.

Hollywood's Monty Woolley, who plays the title-role of Sheridan Whiteside, a thinly disguised Alexander Woollcott, and a company that has been beautifully cast throughout are giving Plymouth audiences the time of their lives.

The third act trouble, occasioned by the play's lapse into slapstick farce, has been righted. The two last-act scenes have been telescoped into one, an unnecessary character has been "rubbed out", the bones of a final curtain has been retained.

Bluntly, "The Man Who Came To Dinner" this minute looks to be the most popular footlights guest Broadway will entertain this season.

Vice Ring Expose On Globe Screen

"Mad Youth" expose of methods used by vice agents to trap reckless girls, is on showing on Globe Theater screen. Mary Ainslee plays the leading feminine role; Betty Compson is her adopted mother; Betty Atkinson her bad friend and Willy Castello the picture's gigolo-hero.

Help Balance Your Budget

By MARTHA LEE

The men folk, of course, always vote for good solid meat dishes, no foolishness—thick steak, juicy roasts, chops done to a turn, every night in the week.

Here are some suggestions for keeping your voters satisfied and your budget balanced.

SWISS STEAK

Two lbs. flank steak will serve 4 or 5 persons. Have the tendons cut across the top and ask your butcher to cut the steak in two, through the center, making two thinner steaks. Season the steaks with salt, pepper and a little powdered sage. Then spread with a rich prepared mustard. (The mustard helps make the steak more tender and adds a savory richness that men praise no end.) Dip in flour. Brown in hot fat, either in a heavy frying pan or roaster. Add water or juicy tomatoes sufficient to cover bottom of pan. Cook, covered, in oven or on top of stove, about 1 hour until tender.

PORK TENDERLOIN

Split down the center. Salt, pepper; roll in crumbs or flour. Brown in hot fat. Add 1 cup water mixed with 1 tablespoon rich prepared mustard (a pinch of allspice, if desired), and a bay leaf. Cook slowly, covered, until liquid is absorbed.

MEAT LOAF

This is unusually good. Soak 4 slices bread in water and press dry. Add to 1 lb. ground beef, ½ lb. each of veal and pork, 1¼ tsp. salt, 1 onion chopped fine, 2 tbsp. an additional ¾ hour. This is a wonderful meat loaf, moist and delicious with prepared mustard, ½ cup quick cooking tapioca, and 2 cups canned tomatoes or 1 cup milk and 1 cup water. Mix well. Pour into greased loaf pan. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Then turn heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and bake one hour, though it slices perfectly.

For the hearty meal which appeals to the men at any time of the year, you can make no better choice than a savory tender pot-roast. Serve it with noodles or dumplings and gravy if the day is a wee bit chilly; if the day is warm, serve it with cool crisp cole slaw and you will have a combination which will make a hearty meal that will win compliments galore.

BEEF POT ROAST

4 lbs. beef chuck, rump or heel of round
Flour for dredging
Lard for browning
Salt and pepper
Water

Dredge the pot-roast with flour, season with salt and pepper, and brown well on all sides in hot lard. Add ½ cup hot water, cover and cook very slowly until done. If the liquid cooks away, add more but only a little at a time. Allow about three hours for cooking.

Fashion Flash

IF YOUR features aren't exactly wonderful, and your chin-line not like chiseled marble . . . and you take your snood hat too seriously, piling every wisp of hair into the bag, you won't be at all happy, and the onlookers will wish for a quick retreat of snood fashions. They reach their height of becomingness when they're big, crisp and puffy . . . and are worn outside the hair. This, of course, means a medium or long bob. Keep a soft frill of hair around the ears, and a roll over or under in back, with the snood elastic on top, but low.—ANNICE BRINK.

GIRL 'UNDER SPELL' 10 YRS.

which the $8777.25 judgment against her is based is dated Oct. 22, 1938, but Peggy Ann maintains that she did not sign it until last July and then only when she was "unable to refuse his urging and weak under the spell his presence has always cast over me."

Her affidavit cites she lives at the Hotel San Jacinto in East 60th st., while her father, Sidney R. Kent, lives in Park ave. He pays all her upkeep bills, the girl says, and gives her an allowance varying between $7500 and $10,000.

"Therefore," says the affidavit, "it has never been necessary for me to borrow money from the plaintiff or anyone else."

According to her claim, Dr. Smith approached her last July for a $5000 loan and told her, much to her surprise, that she was an officer and director of his laboratories.

The doctor said the company was liable to get into trouble unless she could raise the $5000, she says, and when she told him she could not get that amount of money he suggested that she borrow it from her father.

This suggestion being rejected, Dr. Smith next advised, she claims, that she get the amount from a trust fund of $50,000 left her by her mother.

"I was frightened," the affidavit says, "for I remembered when I was a little girl he was in trouble in Los Angeles over a golf course which he promoted as a result of which many people lost huge sums of money."

WHAT DOES QUICK DIGESTION DO? } IS MELBA TOAST EASY TO DIGEST?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

"I have heard people say that certain foods are easily digested and quickly assimilated. Provided this is so, what is the object of having a food quickly assimilated and easily digested?"

Mrs. E. R. H

Muscular effort creates a demand for muscle fuel. The quicker a food digests, the more quickly will the fuel reach the muscles that use it. The term "quick energy" was devised to express this advantage of quickly digested and assimilated foodstuffs.

Melba Toast Is Easy to Digest

What are the characteristics of Melba toast, and what is the approximate difference in calories in a slice of bread Melba toasted and one untoasted? C. F. W.

The directions for making Melba toast are to cut bread in ⅛-inch slices and bake in a moderate oven (320 degrees F) until crisp. Using ordinary bread, a slice of such toast yields about 0.6 gm. protein, 0.07 gm. fat, and 3.7 gms. starch and sugar, producing about 18 calories to the slice.

The baking removes only watery burns up a slight amount of starch. Four slices of Melba toast would have practically the calorie value of one ½-inch slice of untoasted white bread.

The main physiological value of Melba toast is the ease with which it takes up the digestive juices and hence its easier digestion.

Dairy Products Good Sources of Calcium

I should like to know what foods have calcium in them.

Miss K. G.

Dairy products in general are an excellent source of calcium and have the special value of providing it in perhaps the most usable form. Green vegetables and fruits are next in richness in this factor, and while their calcium is not quite so readily utilized as that in milk, they are quite satisfactory sources of it.

Raw Sugar Has an Alkaline Reaction

What is the reaction of whole raw sugar? S. S. Q.

Pure sugar has no mineral residue and consequently is wholly neutral in reaction when absorbed into the blood. Sugar is made from the juice of the sugar cane or sugar beet, and these juices are predominantly alkaline in their mineral content. Since the raw sugar will contain some of these juice residues, its alkalinity will be in direct proportion to the amount of plant juice left in the sugar.

Three-in-One Lipstick

By ARLINE GOULD

THE DAY of one lipstick . . . to go with every color, for day or evening . . . is long gone. And no beauty-conscious girl will commit the color crime of wearing a rust-toned lipstick with violet shades, or the other way around.

Now that's all very well . . . but carrying three lipsticks or so in place of one in your handbag adds materially to your collection of "junk" . . . so we wonder why no one ever thought of this before!

A trick pad of fine chamois-like leather, which unsnaps and shows in three little belly bands a trio of lipstick! Each one is about half-size and there's plenty of lip-glamour to last a season through.

This endearing trifle is not much more than the price of one lipstick, and a life-saver to the color-conscious. And don't you for a minute fool yourself into believing it's only the women who notice wrong-shade lipsticks . . . men are hyper-sensitive about such things. Aren't they the original crusaders against twisted stocking seams, chipped nail polish, lipstick on teeth and untidy back hair?

It's also one gadet which will have a prime place on your Christmas list, because even the girl who has everything, the annoying creature, couldn't possibly have this one. It's too new!

If you'd like to learn about this trio of half-size lipsticks dolled up in a soft leather band that takes not much more room in your purse than one regular size lipstick, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

EVERYONE . . . from the college girl Anne Shirley portrays in a current picture . . . to the career woman is newly conscious of the tie-up between fashion and beauty color codes. No more unflatteringly-tinted lips if you have on hand the trio of widely different tones, all in one kit, that Arline Gould advocates.

Engagement Broken---Why?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a month ago I became engaged to a girl I met at a party. We seemed to be attracted to each other from the moment we met, and now it seems as if something has come between us. The other evening she gave me back my engagement ring, and I feel pretty badly about it.

The fault was all mine, and I believe I love her more than I did, and I think she loves me. I think a great deal of her family and they also seemed to like me, which was my reason for going to their house the other evening. She was there and came into the room where I was sitting several times, for some reason or other, and spoke to me. But that was all.

She is a home girl, 25 years of age, and doesn't seem to care to go out with anyone since our engagement was broken. Do you think I can hope for a reconciliation?

BENJAMIN.

You haven't told me the reason for this broken engagement, but it seems to me if she makes her presence known in this way, by walking into the room where you are visiting her family, that she will be willing to make up again.

If you haven't renewed the engagement by the time you see this in print, suppose you persuade her family to leave you two alone, and then try your powers of persuasion toward a reconciliation. My best wishes to you.

RENO Rendezvous

by LESLIE FORD

Can Judy Find Romance In Divorce Racket Town?

OUT OF THE ENORMOUS white letters scattered over the smooth dun-colored mountains of Nevada as if some petulant giant baby had chucked the whole alphabet out of his soup—I at long last spotted the "R" that stands for Reno.

But not before the blonde girl in black had put her tiny veil down from her close-fitting black straw hat and gathered her handsome silver foxes on her arm.

It was the first move she'd made, except to order a sandwich she'd hardly touched.

So that's why I was going to Reno . . . not to try to reason with her, but to keep her mother, who can collapse for anything from sudden death to underdone souffle, from trying to do it; for I couldn't believe that a marriage like that could go on the rocks without leaving bitter heartache.

It seems strange now the way it all worked out. I'm sure I didn't, when I left Washington, have the slightest inkling that anything more serious than domestic tragedy was waiting for me beyond the plains. I did telephone Colonel John Primrose, 92d Engineers, U. S. Army, Retired, the night before I left; but I only did it because he was in San Francisco, as special agent for the Treasury Department on a counterfeiting case, and getting ready to leave for home.

I hoped when I did it that he and not his man Friday—if that's not too frivulous a thing to call Phineas T. Buck, First Sergeant 92d Engineers, U. S. A., Retired—would answer the phone. But things don't happen that way, not in my life.

When I heard Sergt. Buck answer it didn't take television for to see his lanter-jawed granite pan congeal and his dead fish-gray eyes narrow as he recognized my voice. Nor did his sinister tones saying "I'll call the colonel, ma'am," in any way conceal the fact that he was thinking bitterly that not even a continent between us was sufficient to keep his colonel from my designing clutches.

For Sergt. Buck has long been convinced that no widow of 38 can meet a man—any man, but especially one as engaging as his colonel, even if he has successfully avoided the shoals of matrimony for 51 years—and not have definitely dishonorable intentions.

And of course for her to telephone from the East Coast that she'd be in Reno in three days, and do stop and see her, was just to confirm Sergt. Buck's worst fears and most horrible imaginings. I knew that from Col. Primrose's chuckle coming over 3000 miles of wire, and wished instantly that I hadn't been so stupid and had let them pass me somewhere in Nebraska and given Sergt. Buck the pleasure of finding me gone when they got home. I was even sorrier I hadn't, a day or so later.

The blonde girl put on her gloves. The plane bounced gently, and taxied steadily to a stop. Outside, the hot desert air struck like a draft from a blast furnace. I stood there for an instant, a little bewildered in the general confusion. It seemed curious to me then, and I never did get used to it, about Reno, how so comparatively few people could make so much turmoil.

OLD RENO CUSTOM

There weren't more than seven or eight there, milling about, all lit in varying degrees, shouting and screaming, waving good-bye to a girl with a spray of battered gardenias long enough for a gangster's funeral on her shoulder. She was rather tighter than the rest.

The co-pilot grinned at me.

"Just an old Reno custom," he said tolerantly.

I learned he was right, even to the sheaf of brown-edged gardenias tied with silver ribbon, a sort of reverse bridal bouquet, and the shouting and laughing and kissing farewell as they shoved a free woman onto the plane, almost before the blonde girl and I were properly debouched.

Not, however, before I heard her glad cry: "Dex! Darling! How marvellous!

And there she was, silver foxes, veil and all, in the arms of a tall handsome chap, booted and spurred, in an elegant flaming red satin shirt and blue jeans tucked into the tops of a pair of fancy high-heeled Western boots.

"Kaye—darling!"

The man called Dex held her at arms' length and looked up and down her slim, smart figure.

"You look like a million! But you'd's better get the city clothes off, or they'll have you in the jug!"

I scrambled around for my luggage.

"Hotel Washoe, miss?"

An odd-looking colored man, also in a red satin shirt (rayon, this time) and a cowboy hat, broke through the milling crowd and grabbed my bag. Somebody took down the steps, and the big red and silver plane roared away, and the little crowd around went suddenly flat.

Like a New Year's Eve party when you wonder, all of a sudden, what you're shouting about, and wish you were home in bed where it's quiet. At least that's the way I feel, on New Year's parties, and after having been in Reno a week it's certainly the way I feel about divorce parties.

Except that the let-down is worse It didn't occur to me then, as it always did later, that the girl flying away over the dun-colored mountains had quit laughing too, and the faint nausea in the pit of her stomach wasn't entirely due to the sudden rising from the earth.

But I didn't think about that then. All I thought about was that the deflated little crowd of people in circus clothes was moving away. Somebody said, "Oh, if I don't get a drink I'm going to die," and that seemed to put a little life into them again.

A girl who knew what she wanted and was jolly well on her way to get it.

"I'm taking Kaye in," the man called Dex said. "The rest of you can get in with Whitey."

He tossed the blonde girl's bag into a dark green coupe standing there. Considering what that car came to mean to me in the next few days, it's surprising I didn't notice then that it was custom-made, with yellow deather seats and a tortoise-shell wheel, and carried New York license plates.

"Hey—where's the old lady?" the man they called Whitey shouted from the big open car that all the rest of them had piled into. He was a bandy-legged little man in tan jodnpurs and a salt-sack polo shirt and his hair, eyes and eyelashes were so blond that he was practically albino.

Dex shrugged. "Dunno. Must have missed the plane."

"WHERE'S JUDY?"

Then one girl in Whitey's car got out. I saw her say something to the rest of them, and both cars vanished in a cloud of dust.

She came swiftly across the sand to me—a slight, willowy girl with dark chestnut curls cropped close to her head, nice dark eyes, and no makeup except the scarlet lips and the warm brown of the desert sun. She had on blue jeans and a white shirt open at the neck. She smiled a friendly rather shy smile.

"Are you by any chance Judy Bonner's aunt, Mrs. Latham?"

"Yes, I am," I said.

She laughed a little.

"The rest of them said you were too young—you were just another out for a divorce," she said. "I'm Polly Wagner. I'm a friend of Judy's. She asked us to meet you."

We shook hands. All the things I'd been hearing about Reno sort of evaporated. Here was another girl like Judy—not like the blonde girl on the plane.

I smiled with some relief. "Where is Judy?" I asked.

Her dark eyes clouded just a little.

"I'll go with you, part way," she said. She held the door of the Hotel Washoe's lumbering old limousine open and we got in, while my colored cowboy labored to get it started, the perspiration making large spots on his rayon satin shirt.

She gave me a quick little smile. "Judy's perfectly all right," she said. "I don't mean she's not. But . . . you know Reno's an awfully funny place. It does odd things to people, if—well, if they're unhappy. And Judy is, even if she'd rather die than admit it.

I didn't say anything. Polly Wagner, who didn't look a day older than 16, flushed.

"Please don't think I'm barging in on Judy's private life. But I . . . well, she's such a perfectly swell person I hate to see her sort of . . . oh, you know how when you're hurt and bewildered, and all that, you try to pretend wou're having a grand time, and you dance all night just because you can't bear to go to bed and be by yourself to think, and you're too proud to just go in a corner and die."

"Is that what Judy's doing?" I asked quietly.

"Well, not exactly. But she's staying in town. Most girls like her go out to one of the good ranches. I'm at Sun Mountain Ranch. But she was out one night and went back. It was so quiet she couldn't stand it."

"You seem to be standing it," I said. I looked at her eager young face that certainly had nothing tragic or unhappy in it.

She smiled again. "That's different. You see, I'm like about 90 per cent of the people who come out here. They know they're going to marry somebody they're awfully in love with before they come. They've made a mess of one marriage and everything's ahead of them. The ranch is marvellous then, because you've got time to think, and you've got something awfully swell to think about.

"The other 10 per cent just have a mess behind and nothing ahead. The desert's empty and . . . desolate, then. Me, for instance—I'm going to marry a man I adore, and I've had a perfectly rotten five years. So I . . . I love the desert, and the mountains, and the . . . the peace. I don't get any kick out of gambling and night clubs."

CITY OF SORROW

"And Judy does?"

"That's the point," she said quickly. "She doesn't. She hates it all. But she's got to do something to keep her mind off . . . off things. Oh, you know how it is, don't you? It's why Paris was so gay during the war."

She turned her open friendly young face earnestly to mine.

"What I mean is, don't . . . don't be surprised at people like Dex Cromwell, and the rest of them—and don't let her do anything she'll be sorry for when she gets away from here . . ."

"Who is Dex Cromwell?" I asked.

She looked a little embarrassed.

"He was the man there with the red shirt and the green car, who took the other woman off the plane.'

Can an older woman, wise and experienced, save a young girl bent on wrecking her life? Don't miss tomorrow's thrilling chapter.

Pound Sterling Goes to War

The pound sterling has gone to war for the preservation of British finance . . . And it will battle on two fronts . . . One is the conservation of monetary resources . . . The other calls for protection of sterling area foreign markets . . .

UNIQUE FEATURE . . . Of the situation is not readily perceived by those who limit themselves to observing actual hostilities . . . For in studying front line action they miss the implications of behind-the-line maneuvers . . . Which find the dollar and pound opposed to one another . . . In a struggle which may well become known as titanic . . . For the export markets of the world are the prize . . . The key to the situation is shown on the chart . . . By the tracing of the pound's course in terms of dollars . . . Particularly during September when a drop of 53¾ cents was registered . . . For then England's best ally took the offensive . . .

SIGNIFICANCE . . . of the decline is two-fold . . . A brake was applied to rising prices of world commodities which England must have . . . While the sterling area were aided in underselling American competitors throughout the world . . . And the area itself at least partially closed to American exporters . . . And those markets affected are a matter of great importance to the United States . . . Which has, and is looking to them for great gains . . . Gains which many observers are more interested in than any resulting from direct war orders . . . and they will be hard to obtain against a cheaper pound . . . Which is really nothing but a reduction in goods prices for foreign buyers . . .

ENGLAND . . . Faces the need for currency, and the longer the war the greater the need . . . Accordingly it is hard to find fault with steps taken to supply the need . . . But when preservation of English finances and trade conflict with American aims there can only be one answer . . . Blocked sterling exchange to conserve monetary resources is a well known fact . . . But if it is complemented with depreciation to facilitate economic penetration or kill off competition then we doubt if the U. S. can stand idly by . . .

BITS O' GOSSIP . . . The hunt for war babies is not limited to companies in line for overseas business . . . Those likely to benefit from emphasis on home preparedness are in demand . . . American Car & Foundry, for instance, is set for U. S. tank orders . . . And it is said the company is prepared to make shells . . . And last June it took an order for a submarine chaser . . . In the 1914 war American's armament activities included rail gun mounts, caissons, limbers, battery escort and artillery vehicles . . . So it could probably swing into production of such items again without too much delay . . .*

MARKET ACTION . . . Has been pretty skittish for a week now . . . And while technical thoughts expressed here have worked out well enough to date there is as yet no assurance of a new, big rise . . . And the answer is found in the source of the advance . . . War made a boom out of a promising domestic boomlet . . . And if the remade type of market is to prevail there must be a war . . . Headlines, talk, peace attempts and threats aren't war . . . And if a war boom is going to continue then front pages must soon be splashed with stories of real battles.

CHELSEA 200 YEARS OLD

Chelsea will observe its 200th anniversary during the week of Oct. 22. A feature of the celebration will be a movie picture depicting Chelsea's growth since Indian days.

Lower Trend Rule In Stock Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (INS)—The stock market reacted moderately today under profit-taking, which followed Saturday's brisk rally of 1 to 6 points. Losses were limited to a little more than a point.

Bethlehem was down 2¾ points to 91 at the opening, but recovered a portion of this later in the forenoon. U. S. Steel started with 3000 shares at 77, off 1¾, and slid to 76¾ before meeting support.

Allied Chemical lost 2 points at its low, while du Pont and Union Carbide dropped half as much. Douglas and United Aircraft in the aviations, American Car & Foundry in the rail equipments, and Eastman Kodak also lost a point or more.

Some groups bucked the downward trend at the opening, but most of these slipped with the rest of the list before noon. Included were electrical equipments, rubbers, mail orders and coppers. Rails showed losses running to almost a point.

Car Loadings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads estimated that freight car loadings for the fourth quarter of 1939 would be 13.8 per cent above loadings for the same quarter last year.

The estimate, the association added, was based on questionnaires submitted shippers "before the sudden increases in carloadings subsequent to the outbreak of the European conflict were much in evidence."

YOU CAN GET A LOAN OF $100

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.41 A MONTH

Read how you can borrow promptly and without asking others for help—No credit inquiries of friends or relatives

YOU need money? You can borrow—quickly and in privacy—if you can make small regular payments on your loan. You can borrow for any worthy purpose—to clean up old debts, to meet an emergency, to pay doctor or dental bills, to take advantage of an opportunity.

Suppose you need $100 and can repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

Choose your own payments

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment you wish to make. Note that you may make very small payments if you prefer. Or you may pay larger installments and pay up sooner. See how little your loan costs if you repay in a short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four months costs only $6.32.

Simple to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is tell us about your needs. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. No need to ask your friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly and privately.

Get full details without obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance plan a simple solution to their emergency money problems. In cases of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Why don't you learn how Household service can help you? There's no obligation if you do not borrow. Phone or visit us today.

Cincinnati Closes A 20-Year Cycle

WHEN THE CINCINNATI REDS WHEEL into the Yankee Stadium this Wednesday, they will close a cycle in baseball history. Twenty years have passed since the Reds won their last pennant and became an unwitting partner to sport's greatest fraud—the Chicago Black Sox scandal of 1919. Twenty years ago today a syndicate of gamblers were plotting in a South side hotel with Eddie Cicotte, White Sox pitcher and go-between. Tonight is the 20th anniversary of the infamous payoff beneath seven bedroom pillows. A second rate Cincinnati team under the late Pat Moran won the series five games to one, and shortly thereafter the fat was in the fire.

AUSTEN LAKE

In the wave of nausea that swept over the country following the courtroom confessions of Cicotte and the implication of such stars as Happy Felsch, Buck Weaver, Shoeless Joe Jackson and Claude Williams, Chick Gandil and Fred McMullen, Judge Landis was hurriedly hired as the omnipotent dictator of the game. The magnates, wishing to divert the people, secretly needled the standard baseball and the homerun, which had been almost as rare as the straight flush in poker, became common. The customers, with their notoriously short memory for a cheat, fell in love with their illusion and refused to let themselves believe that the ball which Babe Ruth, Ken Williams, George Kelly and numerous others were bunting over the outfield walls was any different from the missle which had been used in the era when a dozen homers in a season was the individual record.

So, when Babe Ruth hit 59 in one year and finally 60 the people refused to discount his stupendousness even when the autopsical data was published comparing the homerun, or jack rabbit ball, with the old fashioned hit-and-run, or 'possum ball. They enjoyed being deceived by the magnates as much as they had been horrified at being deceived by the players and the sport writers gave up trying to undeceive them after a while and just went along.

Yankees Prove Game's Honesty

BASEBALL HAS RECOVERED ITS CHARACTER in the eyes of the people and today no smirch or phenagle causes a tide of shame to mantle the cheeks of the magnates. The game is scrupulously honest. Indeed the surest proof is the monotonous regularity with which the Yankees have won pennants when good business policy might dictate that sprinkling pennants around the slum-clubs of the league would create wider customer interest and, hence, larger dividends.

Not, perhaps that human nature in baseball is more moral than it was 20 years ago. It is conceivable that there are athletes in the game today who might accept a bundle of cheat-money for certain services to be rendered. There might be some! But the horrible example of the miscreant seven Black Sox and their unhappy sequel is enough to insure the honesty of the game.

Some time ago, in Savannah, Ga., I ran across Shoeless Joe peddling liquor. He was bald and a little cantaloupe of fat bulged under his belt. He still protested his innocence. "They never got nawthin' on me," he drawled. "They jus' s'picioned I was mixed in it and give me the works." It was the bleat of a man with a blight on his soul, for the Black Sox scandal was always on the tip of Joe's tongue and he harangued whomever he could buttonhole.

Gandil is said to be running a garage in Fort Worth. Cicotte is a dirt farmer in the West. Felsch, when last heard from, was operating a gasoline station in St. Louis. Weaver was selling bedsprings. Williams and McMullen had dropped from sight.

Baseball Is More Generous

ANOTHER INSURANCE AGAINST A repetition of a Black Sox scandal is the increased wage being paid by the major leagues today. For Shoeless Joe, during his last year in baseball, received a mere $6000. Cicotte was paid $4500 and the rest of the malefactors drew proportionately small checks. Thus, when the sinister, crooked-faced little thug, Abe Attel, waved bundles of hundred-dollar bills under the noses of this septette of hayshakers and apple knockers, they snatched at the chance to make an extra year's pay in a few days.

Today the key men of the game are paid generously. Joe DiMaggio, perhaps no better a batsman than Jackson was in his day, gets $27,500. Red Ruffing, no cleverer on the mound than Cicotte, draws $23,000. Frank Crosetti, below the fielding and hitting stature of Buck Weaver, receives $16,500. The baseball magnates learned their lesson. They found the surest safeguard for the game was to share the increased profits with their hired hands.

Twenty years ago the viewpoint of the magnates was exemplified by what happened to Dickie Kerr, one of the Chicago Sox who remained White along with Eddie Collins, present Red Sox office boss, and Ray Schalk. He pitched his arrm off in that 1919 series and won both games in which he worked, despite the muffs, fumbles and boots of his thieving mates. Yet, when winter came and Kerr asked a modest boost in his $3000 wage, he was refused. So Kerr quit the game and went to work for an insurance firm.

So Wednesday a cycle in baseball closes. From its shaky pedestal of 20 years ago it is rooted more firmly in the hearts of our countrymen, receives more lineage in the papers, attracts larger crowds and makes more money. Babe Ruth is a stout, florid playboy now. Judge Landis is a wizened, silling old man. The game, chiefly through the offices of these two, has been saved for another generation of Americans.

DERRINGER NOMINATED TO PITCH FIRST GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds arrived in town early this morning confident they will knock over the Yankees behind the pitching of Paul Derringer in the first game of the World Series Wednesday and then go on to dethrone the American League champions.

After looking at the dreary weather and considering the fact the Reds played a doubleheader against the Pirates yesterday, Manager Bill McKechnie announced there would be no practice today.

They'll get their first feel of the Yankee stadium tomorrow.

With no practice scheduled, Bucky Walters, who is expected to carry the pitching load along with Derringer, and shortstop Billy Myers stopped off in Philadelphia for a visit with their families.

DERRINGER, BILL SAYS

McKechnie had intended to keep his pitching assignment for the first game a secret for another day or so, but when one of the sports writers came out with Derringer definitely slated to hurl the opener, the Reds' pilot broke down and admitted "it will be Paul."

The Reds are the best equipped and most confident National League winner since the rowdy St. Louis Cardinals of 1934. Well rested and serene in their ability to win when the chips are down, the Reds reached the site of the first two battles scoffing at the reported odds of 3 to 1 against them.

They think they are going to make suckers out of the price-layers. They aren't as noisy an outfit as the old Cardinals, but they think they are a better ball club.

The only favor the Reds are prepared to ask of the baseball gods is that their big catcher, Ernie Lombardi, be permitted to go on slugging the ball as he did in the closing weeks of the regular campaign.

With Ernie raking the distant stands with his mighty smacks, the boys of Bill McKechnie figure the series is as good as won.

BETTER THAN DEANS

They haven't a doubt of their pitching superiority. In Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer, they have said repeatedly the last few days, they have a greater pair of right-handers than the brothers Dean were in 1934. (Don't argue with me. That's what the Reds say.)

Both Walters and Derringer must be given good chances of pitching low-hit games against any team—even the Yankees.

Both are fine craftsmen, with experience, speed and wonderful control.

Tom Yawkey Has Operation On Knee

Thomas Austin Yawkey will not see the World Series this fall.

The young president of the Red Sox underwent an operation on his knee this morning at Brooks Hospital, Corey Hill, and will not be out in time to attend the fall classic.

An ardent handball enthusiastic and an excellent player, Yawkey was eager to have the trouble corrected before the winter season.

It has been troubling him periodically all summer.

Posedel, West Win Gruen Watch Awards

By JACK CONWAY

Salute Bill Posedel, pitcher, and Max West, outfielder, of the Bees!

These two stars won the "Yesterday's Hero" contest for the Bees, conducted by the Boston Evening American. They were the choice of the fans and the experts to receive veri-thin Sceptor, 10k gold-filled, 17-jewel precision movement, new 1940 model Gruen wrist watches for brilliant playing this year.

POSEDEL CAME THROUGH

Secured from Brooklyn in an early spring trade, Bill Posedel proved a pitching sensation for the Bees. He came through with victories at critical stages of the pennant race, and at times when other members of the Bees pitching staff were faltering.

Max West hit his stride midway through the flag grind and made a splendid record. He was particularly effective at bat.

Eddie Miller made a good showing in the "Yesterday's Hero" contest up to the time he suffered the injury to one of his legs.

WINNERS DELIGHTED

The presentations of the Gruen wrist watches to Posedel and West were made at National League Field yesterday afternoon by Joe Cashman, baseball editor of the Boston Evening American.

Birney Smith, representing the Gruen Watch Co., was among those present. Posedel and West were delighted they led in number of votes and also with the splendid wrist watches they received.

Saba Bright Spot In Purple Picture After 1st Victory

By BILL GRIMES

Although they pushed across four touchdowns against a strong and courageous Manhattan College team on Saturday, the Crusaders of Holy Cross were not too impressive. But DON'T sell them short.

Manhattan should have had more poise than Holy Cross. The Jaspers had scrimmaged against and played an informal game with Lou Little's Columbia Lions. And head coach Herb Kopf brought a seasoned aggregation to Worcester.

The Crusaders were playing their initial game under Joe Sheeketski. For some reason, they acted as though they were playing under unusual pressure for an opening game. Then, too, the weather was anything but suitable for football.

JASPERS FEARED CAHILL

After the game Kopf stated that in his opinion Manhattan would have beaten Holy Cross but for Co-Captain Ronnie Cahill. The Jaspers feared Cahill's uncanny ability as a passer.

There is no denying that Cahill compares favorably with any forward passer in football. But by using Cahill only as a threat, the Crusaders still could have taken Manhattan into camp very handily.

Joe Sheeketski has a great aggregation of pigskin chasers under his wing up on Mt. St. James. It will be fatal for any Holy Cross opponent to lose sight of the fact that 20 of the current Crusaders are lettermen and also that ten of them could be rated as regulars on the 1938 eleven.

Until the Manhattan game, Sheeketski allowed the football public to believe that Jack Whelan, junior, was the only quarterback on his squad worthy of varsity rating. Of course he didn't say so in so many words. He did, however, state that the Pittsburgh boy would pilot the "Shock Troops" and also the "Regulars."

SABA GETS CHANCE

Possibly that arrangement was Sheeketski's intention. But the weather was very unsuitable for football. It was a hot, sticky afternoon. So after he had been in action for a period and a half, Whelan was "cooked."

Out he came and Frank Saba, a sophomore, who acquired a statewide reputation while playing for Brockton high, was sent in to relieve Whelan.

It was about halfway through the second period, with the score 0-0, when Saba raced in to replace Whelan. Ted Mazur, the Manhattan punter, had just kicked out of bounds on his own 39. On the first play, Saba called for Andy Giardi to crack the center of the Jasper line. With the aid of a fine piece of blocking by Saba, Giardi went seven yards before he tripped and fell.

On the next play, Saba threw another block to clear the path for the ball carrier and Giardi raced for a 22-yard advance. On the ensing attack, Giardi went for the first touchdown.

Mr. Saba will be a very valuable asset to Holy Cross and Joe Sheeketski. He's not only a deadly blocker but also a clever ball carrier, one whom any opponent will have trouble knocking down. Saba turned in the longest run of the game when he galloped 29 yards in the fourth period.

TWO ELEVENS EQUAL

Sheeketski has two elevens on Mt. St. James of about equal strength. Of course, he has only one Ronnie Cahill but if he gets in a tight spot he can dig up one of two clever passers who are capable of holding up their ends even against the strong opponents Holy Cross is scheduled to meet this season.

Holy Cross is deep at every position, with the exception of the flanks. At this stage of the season, Jack Reardon, Bill Histen and Bob O'Reilly are the outstanding ends.

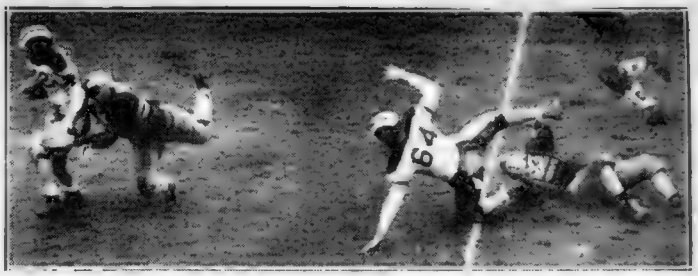
Feller Named "Star of Year" In AP Poll

The "star of the season" in the Major League constellation was young Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians.

In the Associated Press' daily tabulation of "yesterday's stars" during the baseball campaign, Feller narrowly edged out such stellar performers as Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox and Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds.

The fireball ace of Cleveland's pitching staff won 24 games and lost nine over the season's route and distinguished his record with two no-hit ball games.

He also struck out 246 batters, leading his closest rival by some 50 strikeouts.



"COME BACK HERE"—J. Martin (62) of Furman (S. C.) is brought down by an Army man (unidentified) as he gained five yards on an end run at West Point, New York, where Army scored a 16-7 victory. Gilstrap (64) of Furman has been sent sailing by Maupin (33) of Army.

EAGLE LINE FAST, CHARGES HARD; OPEN STYLE OF PLAY PLEASING

By DAVE GLUECK

Former Guard at Harvard College

Boston College Eagles showed a new spirit as they overwhelmed the visitors from Lebanon Valley, 45 to 0. The Eagle power remains virtually untested by the one-sided encounter, with scores in every period, but no one can deny that the boys are starting the season in the right frame of mind.

From the opening whistle the line boiled out of the huddle and charged the opposition off its feet.

Chet Gladchuck, the big Bridgeport boy playing an outstanding game at center, was characteristic of the rejuvenated forward wall. The beautiful block he threw on Ananis' 36-yard punt return was only one of many plays that made almost every back on the Eagle squad look like a master.

On defense he was a tower of strength, twice kicking off over the Lebanon goal line, one sure way of preventing runbacks.

USE NOTRE DAME STYLE

In the backfield Montgomery, Ananis, O'Rourke and Jauron were outstanding runners, but almost anyone could have run through the holes opened by the B. C. forward wall. Of course the Lebanon line was hitting and backing, which is duck soup play for a hard charging offense, and it remains to be seen what the Eagles will do against someone nearer their weight and aggressiveness. Nevertheless, for this early in the year, they showed a competent grasp of the Notre Dame system which Coach Leahy introduced.

This more open style of play will be a welcome change after last year's uninteresting and uninspiring tackle pounding. But this, too, is yet to be unveiled.

Against the Pennsylvania boys, except for the first ten minutes of play when B. C. looked slightly lateral crazy, Leahy's lads used very orthodox football, with only nine attempted forwards. This was evidently all they had to use, for it netted them 15 first downs to Lebanon's one.

Leahy says his type of ball is designed to set up long runs, with every play a theoretical touchdown. Against this game's visitors this worked. There were numerous runs of 20 yards and more, with even the set-up plays 4 to 6 yards.

There are, of course, weak spots in the Eagle club. The main one is a lack of good passers behind Chucking Charlie O'Rourke. O'Rourke completed three of the five successful forwards. Jauron and McGowan, sophomore hopefuls, were pretty wild in the air. This situation will probably improve when Jauron's injured back is completely recovered.

The protection the B. C. line gave its aerial artists would have delighted any coach's heart. On O'Rourke's 30-yard touchdown fling, he waited a full five seconds until Ananis outdistanced the Lebanon secondary, then threw a perfect spiral to the stocky Cambridge boy, who stepped untouched into the end zone.

YAUCKOS OUTSTANDING

Another thing the Eagles will get a lot of work on is their timing. When the first string backfield was working together, which was only for about ten minutes at the beginning of the first and fourth periods, plays functioned fairly smoothly, but when Leahy sent the youngsters in there was some lack of co-ordination, and the faking left something to be desired.

The Boston College line was the brightest spot in a pretty cheery picture. Lebanon gained a paltry 34 yards by rushing and was unable to find a weak spot anywhere in the huge Eagle front.

Giant John Yauckos was outstanding not because of his size, but because of his unusual speed in getting down under punts and his fine defensive work.

Lukach'k, another speedster, played a good game at end, making a fine thing out of one of McGowan's passes. Captain Schwotzer turned in his usual reliable performance, and Zabilsky, Morro, Manzo and Kerr also did creditable jobs.

This line is going to cause a lot of grief this season, and much of the credit should go to Johnny Druze, capable assistant to Frank Leahy. He has put a new vigor into his massive frontier. They charge low, fast and hard on bucks.

On sweeps, the guards snap out of the line with a speed that keeps the carriers working hard to stay close to them. On defense these same guards whip back into their secondary when the enemy is passing to help out down the aerials, while the ends and tackles rush the tosser with plenty of speed.

Blocking backs Cowhig and Toczylowski cut down lots of would-be tacklers in the course of the afternoon. The former took out both the end and the wingback on Montgomery's scoring run from the midfield stripe. Toczylowski lived up to predictions about his ball carrying abilities by returning a punt very capably for 20 yards.

Feller Must Beat Cleveland Nine Today

Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians' fireball ace, will be the pitching mainstay of the Tribe today when they meet the Detroit Tigers in the first game of a double-header at Cleveland.

Feller, who has won 24 games this season, will be opposed by Tommy Bridges, who has won 22 games for the Tigers.

Should Feller win today, he will be the first pitcher in baseball history to win 25 games in a season.

Gildea Must Keep Son on Knee During Game

Coach Denny Gildea of Everett High, whose team got away to a smart start Saturday by winning 13-0 over Leominster, has a new problem on his hands today—his 3½-year-old son, Barry.

A self-appointed mascot two years ago, young Barry still hasn't this football business completely figured out, but he likes to get in where things are happening, and find out what's going on.

Saturday, when an Everett player the boy knew was knocked out, young Barry walked out on the field, bringing his father's throat into his mouth.

Now, when he watches his players, Coach Denny holds this new young hopeful on his knee.

ARCLIGHT GAME PUT OVER

The floodlight football game, scheduled tonight at Victory field, Watertown, between the Middlesex A. A. of Watertown and J. T. Sullican Club of Cambridge, has been put over to Saturday night at 3 p. m.

Hive Double Bills Open Boston Card; Other Grid Battles

Football openings are frequent this week with the Boston schoolboys swinging into competition in three doubleheaders at National League Field, the first of the series tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m.

Twelve members of the Hub system will get their campaigns under way, Trade, Latin and Hyde Park having tasted battle in outside games.

Tomorrow Boston English and Roxbury Memorial will battle. Hyde Park and South Boston were originally slated for this honor, but this clash has been moved to Wednesday.

East Boston and Jamaica Plain will share the opening twin bill while B. C. High will take on Commerce, the first of its city foes, in the nightcap of the Wednesday double order.

Bill Pendergast's Dorchester takes on Trade school, while Roslindale meets Charlestown on Thursday's card with Latin school winding up the first Beehive week in a single tilt Friday.

Bill Murphy's Brighton eleven will have to wait another week to step into the intown schools but the eleven will get its first test against Watertown Saturday.

Two major night games are on the list for Friday. At Chelsea, Cambridge Latin, seeking its first victory, will play its fourth contest while Lynn English takes over Manning Bowl to entertain Beverly. English will be seeking its third win.

Saturday will be the biggest schoolboy date of the campaign thus far with many feature battles.

Leading event will be the Medford-Brockton game at Medford. Both are undefeated in two starts, and unscored upon.

CRUISING SIDELINES—You'd not expect to see a real live U. S. admiral involved in a grid game but here is one, Admiral Emory S. Land at Annapolis. He acts here as assistant linesman, and his grin tells the story of the Navy's win over William and Mary.

B'S, SOX END SEASON; HOSE MISS 90 WINS

Local baseball had gone into hiding today until another season.

The Bees, getting in the first game of a twin-bill with the Giants and being washed out of the nightcap, pulled down the curtain by dropping a 5 to 0 decision to Harry Gumbert at the Sunday wake which attracted 1700 of the faithful to be Hive.

Thus the Allston athlees headed homeward as seventh-pleers. That was the poorest showig by a native National League atry, since the 1935 club set a record for defeats.

The Sox finished up inNew York by being rained out of hth ends of a scheduled twin-bill with the champion Yankees.

ONE OVER '38 TOTL

The Cronlnmen, csequently, failed by one to reatltheir goal of 90 victories, but in nalking up 89 wins they increasi their '38 total by one and, of cowe, finished in second place for thecond successive year.

The attention of Eton fans, but not of the avenge Boston player, now turns to te World's Series.

Fellows who get paidor playing ball don't relish payinto see ball played, which they mudo if they wish to attend the faldassic.

PLAYERS HEAD HOE

So most of the Ha diamond heroes have already reled or are on their way to therespective homes.

The executives and anagers of the Sox and Bees, nsually, will attend the classic, bt the only privates who have announced their intention of dong s are Moe Berg, Teddy Williams nd Jimmy Foxx of the Sox and Ioy Cucci-nello of the Bees.

Tufts Tackles Middlebury

Middlebury's victory over Williams in their opener on Saturday indicates a tough game for the Jumbos as they open against the Vermont eleven this week at Middlebury.

The Tufts squad boasts a full team of lettermen, with several sophomores edging in, but the lack of reserve material is serious. The first string has had little difficulty in driving the length of the Tufts Oval consistently against the second team.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE 17,000 CROWD at the Boston College-Lebanon Valley game on Saturday was a fine tribute to Frank Leahy's reorganized club . . . The spirit of the rooters was as high as that of the Maroon and Gold players . . . Of course, Lebanon wasn't very serious opposition, especially after the first period, when the visitors ran out of top replacements, but one must admit Boston College displayed exceptional football possibilities.

"This could be a whale of a football team that Frank Leahy has fashioned," writes John Gillooly.

Leahy is young and believes in new methods . . . He has the daring of the modern school of football and has inspired his players with the thought they can win . . . For several years Boston has been looking for another winning team at Boston College such as existed in the palmy days of Frank Cavanaugh . . . It was a Cavanaugh team that beat Yale, and it looks as if the 1939 Boston College model is going to make a creditable showing.

Holy Cross did as expected in winning from Manhattan . . . Make no mistake about the Crusaders . . . They have one of the great football teams of the country . . . They will be waiting for a Rose Bowl offer when the season closes.

St. Anselm ran true to form in trouncing Northeastern . . . Cleo O'Donnell, with a limited squad, always manages to come up with a crack eleven . . . St. Anselm has a record of having held one of the crack Holy Cross elevens to a scoreless tie.

Notre Dame Is Given Scare

NOTRE DAME WON from Purdue, but was given quite a scare . . . Johnny Kelleher was obliged to kick a third period placement for the Irish to turn Purdue back by a 3-to-0 score . . . Notre Dame and Purdue must be given credit for staging such an important football show early in the season . . . The 40,000 crowd at South Bend, Ind., was proof that the public appreciated the decision of the athletic authorities of Notre Dame and Purdue to drop in a gridiron classic at the opening whistle.

The final score showed that the game was all it promised to be . . . Kelleher is a reserve quarterback . . . That is why Notre Dame has always had such great football standing . . . When it is backed against the wall, some unknown youngster trots out on the field and executes the play that changes apparent defeat into a glorious victory.

On Saturday Harvard will roll into action with Bates as an opponent . . . Dick Harlow has developed fine teams at Cambridge during the past few years, and this season should not be an exception . . . The Bates game will give Harlow an opportunity to look at some of his carefree youngsters in action . . . Once the World's Series is out of the way, football will have the sports stage to itself, and it promises to put on one of his most colorful shows.

Anybody Can Pick Yanks to Win

IN PICKING THE Yanks to win the World Series from the Reds we are doing what appears logical . . . The 3 to 1 betting price about tells the story . . . The Yanks have proved one of the great clubs of baseball . . . They have done everything that has been asked of them . . . The present assignment is a seven game series with the Reds, and they insist they will click once more.

Secretly we shall be rooting for the Reds to win . . . We are tired of seeing National League clubs bounced around in World Series games . . . We believe it would help baseball if the clan of Bill McKechnie could upset the Yanks and win the series . . . Good pitching will give the Reds a chance . . . Any club with flingers like Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer cannot be counted out before the opening game . . . I would also like to see the Reds win on account of the fact Bill McKechnie manages the club.

McKechnie is a splendid baseball character, and he made many friends during the years he was in Boston as pilot of the Braves . . . In two years' time in Cincinnati, Bill has come through with a pennant winner . . . It may be too much to hope that the Reds will now conquer the Yanks, but we shall still hope, and root for Bill McKechnie to bring his gang through a winner.

I know Bill will pardon us for buying a $2 win ticket on the Yanks . . . As a canny Scotchman, Bill can recognize the class of the world's champions . . . He knows he is shooting against the best club in baseball, but will keep trying until beaten . . . In baseball with good pitching one always has a chance of winning.

Joe Callahan of East Boston Arrives

JOE CALLAHAN, who used to pitch for East Boston High and Northeastern, is getting his mail at National League Park . . . On what Joe showed against the Giants on Saturday he will be in our midst for an indefinite stay . . . Joe licked the Giants by a 3 to 2 score, allowed only eight hits and did not give a single base on balls . . . Callahan's fault used to be lack of control, but he appears to have corrected it . . . Callahan is 22 years of age and is well set up . . . With the years he will add weight . . . Clark Griffith, who helped develop Walter Johnson, once told me pitchers do not have their full strength and growth until they are 27 to 29 years of age.

Callahan pitched for Boe Coleman's Evansville team during the past season, and won 19 games . . . It looks as if Bob Quinn and Casey Stengel have come up with a valuable baseball asset.

Police Commissioner Joe Timilty will take in the World Series games in New York, and then fly to California to address a meeting of the International Police Chiefs Association . . . Commissioner Timilty will tell the story of his junior police, one of the most distinctive organizations of its kind in the world.

STAGG, 75, SEES TEAM TOP BEARS

The great color story of football's big fall opening was not the victories of Boston College, Holy Cross and Notre Dame, but the triumph of 75-year-old Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of Pacific eleven of Stockton, Cal., over California.

Stagg for years coached the University of Chicago, and was finally told his services were no longer wanted.

"Stagg is an old man, and this game of football is too fast for him," said the group opposed to Stagg.

The grand old man of football brushed the tears from his eyes, and set out for the far west. He was finally signed to coach College of the Pacific.

California has what is considered one of the great teams of the country, but this didn't bother Stagg. The veteran coach had beaten outstanding elevens before, and felt he could do so again. He succeeded. While Pacific won over California, Chicago suffered another defeat.

Since Stagg checked out at Chicago, its football record has been very poor. Nobody has been found among the younger coaches who can equal Stagg's record.

ALONZO STAGG

Pacific will keep active during the fall campaign, and Stagg is sure to score his share of victories.

At 75 the grand old man of football still has a few football tricks to show to the younger generation.

Diplomats Face B. U. in Opener

Boston University's newest grid machine makes its bow at Fenway Park next Saturday afternoon against Franklin and Marshall.

The Terriers will present an untried eleven with at least three and possibly four sophomores in the starting lineup against the Diplomats who toyed with Upsala in the opener last Saturday.

Cliff Fitzpatrick has won the left end job and Jimmy Cassidy has captured the left halfback spot to give the sophomore group two certain B. U. starters.

Another sophomore who may break in there is Walter Williams at fullback. Ralph Salvati, a junior, leading the parade for the fullback jib, is suffering from a bad leg and may be held in reserve. Johnny Wedemeyer, the third fullback and also a sophomore, has been bothered with a foot infection and it is not expected to be ready for Saturday.

McLaughry Speaks For Brown Club

Coach Tuss McLaughry will make his annual visit to the Brown Club of Boston, Wednesday, when he will be the featured speaker at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce.

He will discuss the season's prospects for Brown and answer questions.

"IT'S LIKE THIS"—And Linesman Austen Lake, left, compares grid notes with Field Judge Albie Booth before the Boston College-Lebanon Valley game at the Heights. Grid days are good days to the two, as their expressions show. Both are ex-grid stars, Lake a Lafayette fullback a while ago, and Albie Yale's backfield hero of ten years back.

Harlow Polishes Crimson For Opener With Bates

Coach Dick Harlow will spend this week smoothing out rough spots in the Crimson machine and will settle the fight for starting berths before his team faces the Bobcats from Bates on Saturday.

Harvard will be represented by a big, but inexperienced team. Fortunately there are some good men ready to step into vacancies created by graduation of Wilson, Don Daughters, Bobby Green and others.

An intra-squad game held Saturday brought weak spots of the 1939 team into high relief. A wide open fight is being waged for the end positions and the scrimmage on Saturday did not add much to the situation.

THREE SENIORS EQUAL

Loren McKinney, rangy soph from North Carolina and captain of last year's frosh trackmen, has been outstanding defensively. Seniors Jim Downing, Bart Kelley and Jim Devine are about on a par. Hank Vander Eb, 185 soph, who has been converted from the backfield, has played so well that he can not be left out of consideration.

Kaufman and Lovett, both juniors, have also shown up well. A toss of the coin may have to decide the selection.

A year ago all attention was focused on Joe Gardella of Arlington. This year Gardella is having a battle to retain his starting position. George Heiden, a 185-pound six-footer from Wisconsin is rated Gardella's equal. At the present Heiden looks like Harvard's best defensive back and can also do his share of lugging the ball.

3 BERTHS SETTLED

Three of the backfield berths are settled. Big Bill Coleman will be at quarter. Torbie Macdonald, playing at left half appears headed for his best year.

At fullback Fred Spreyer, a New Haven boy, promises to become one of the outstanding Harlow pupils. His sensational punting brings back to memory the role that Dave Colwell filled at Yale.

Huskies Point For N. H. Game

Coach Jimmy Dunn today sized up the Northeastern loss to St. Anselm by saying:

"I took a gamble and lost."

The Huskies' mentor, believing that the Hawks would depend entirely on a solid running attack, built a defense to stop Ray McLean and his outfit did just that. The one trouble was that McLean suddenly blossomed forth as a passer, and as a result the Hawks rifled three fast touchdowns in the second period, through the air.

Naturally, a 36 to 7 defeat is rather disheartening, but the Hawks were definitely out of the Huskies class, and now that the game is over, N. U. can look forward to New Hampshire Saturday with an even chance.

The one bad aftermath is that Phil Sheridan, sophomore center, who relieved Art Anderson and who outshone the veteran, was hurt and is definitely out of next Saturday's game against the Wildcats.

Big League Season Fades Out Quietly; Few Notable Feats

By Associated Press

With as much fanfare as a mouse entering its hole the 1939 baseball season expired yesterday and shortly will be buried in the history books.

Well-beloved while it was a living, boisterous being, the season left a surprisingly small estate to posterity.

Appraisers in years hence probably will find it is indeed buried when they go thumbing into the records.

Chiefly 1939 was the year the New York Yankees won their fourth consecutive American League championship and the Cincinnati Reds battled through to their first National League pennant in 20 years.

EASY FOR YANKS

The Yankees devoured their opposition like some dread dragon. They took the lead in the first week of the season and after one short struggle in which they were up and down with the Boston Red Sox, gained permanent control May 11. They clinched their championship Sept. 16 and finished with a 17-game margin.

The Reds had a nip-and-tuck scramble with the St. Louis Cardinals at the start of the season and gave an encore of the same routine at the end of the show, although they led the senior circuit all the way from May 26. Their final margin was four and a half games.

RISKS POSITION

The Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers provided the year's major surprises. Both were deep in the second division last year and figured to stay there, or thereabouts. But the Cardinals never were worse than second and the Dodgers wound up third in their only first division finish since 1932.

Larry MacPhail, mogul of the Dodgers, gambled his team's position for a million attendance yesterday and won. The club had drawn some 990,000 paid admissions and wanted to reach 1,000,000 for the season.

Rain fell all day and the club had third place clinched if it didn't play, but ran the risk of losing their position if defeated. They nosed out the Philadelphia Phillies in the rain 2-1 and reached both goals. A second scheduled game was cancelled.

Inclement weather cut heavily into the final day's doubleheaders but Harry Gumbert managed to come up with one of his best pitching performances, a four-hitter to give the Giants a 5-0 shutout over the Boston Bees; the Chicago Cubs nosed out the Cardinals, 2-1, and Cincinnati's champions divided a meaningless double bill with the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-1 and 3-0.

In the only American League games Joe Grace hit a homer in the ninth and drove in another run in the tenth to beat the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, for the St. Louis Browns, and Cleveland and Detroit split a twin bill, 8-3 and 1-0. The first game was victory No. 24 for Bob Feller and the second Buck Newsom's 20th.

FEW STANDOUT FEATS

Besides this pair the season's 20 game winners included Cincinnati's great combination, Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters, Curt Davis of the Cardinals, Red Ruffing of the Yankees, Dutch Leonard of the Washington Senators, and Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin of Brooklyn.

There not only was no "double no-hit" spectacle this year, but also no single no-hit performances. Slugging reached no peak comparable to the 1938 season when Hank Greenberg knocked 58 home runs. The best this season was 35 by Jimmie Foxx of the Red Sox.

Joe Di Maggio of the Yankees sauntered out in quest of hitting immortality as represented by a .400 batting average, but had to be satisfied at the end with a .381 figure accompanied by the American League hitting championship. Johnny Mize of the Cards topped the National with .349.

LIONS' PACE MAKES GLOOMY GUS GRIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—Those Detroit Lions are making a smiling man out of Coach Gloomy Gus Henderson with their brilliant victory-producing tactics in the National Pro Football League.

Henderson," who moved in as Detroit coach this season after Dutch Clark went to Cleveland, has his aggressive machine riding the crest of the league's western division, the only undefeated and untied team in the circuit.

Rookie Johnny Pingel, all-America at Michigan State last fall and looking better all the time, again was the main cog in the Lions' attack last night when they defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 17 to 3, before 10,000 spectators in Soldier Field.

Detroit spotted the Cards three points on Bill Smith's 20-yard field goal, then went to work.

Pingel set up the first touchdown with an 18-yard pass to Charles Hanneman, then Bill Shepherd cracked center for the score, and Hanneman added the point from placement.

Hanneman added three points with a 41-yard field goal, and then Pingel tossed a 17-yard pass to Hanneman for the second touchdown.

Dutch Clark's Cleveland outfit prevented Green Bay, last year's western division winner, from keeping pace with the Lions. The Rams scored 13 points in the final quarter to whip the Packers, 27 to 24, the latters' first loss of the season.

The New York Giants, league champions, and Washington remained tied for first in the Eastern division by playing a scoreless tie in Washington before 26,432 fans.

Chicago Bears and Pittsburgh Pirates meeet tonight at Pittsburgh. A Bear victory would put the Chicagoans in a second place tie with Green Bay in the Western division.

SPORT INTERLUDES

Yawkey, Quinn Glad It's Over { Stengel Spots Rookies for 1940

By BILL GRIMES

Both Bob Quinn and Tom Yawkey are glad that the curtain has dropped on the 1939 season . . . The Bees figured to finish in the first division and the Red Sox felt that they had an even chance to take the American League title from the Yankees . . .

Unfortunately for both Boston clubs, the pitchers let them down . . . The Bees were further handicapped by the loss of Eddie Miller and Tony Cuccinello.

Now that he has signed a new five-year contract, Manager Joe Cronin will start to enlist a new corps of pitchers, and he's also in the market for a catcher of the "Birdie" Tebbetts type . . .

For almost a month Casey Stengel has been gathering first-hand information on about all of the promising recruits the Bees had on farms . . . He now knows just what to expect from the rookies, who have learned more baseball since they joined the Bees than in their entire previous careers . . .

Poor judgment has cost two recruits their chances of making the grade with the Bees . . . For an opportunity to display his wares in the big league one asked for a bonus . . . After pitching three innings yesterday, the other asked to be relieved . . . He had a reservation on a plane . . . His home is just outside New York City.

SCHOOL FOR WIETELMANN

Billy Wietelmann will attend a baseball school in Florida this winter . . . He will be sent South about the middle of January . . . Packed in the rear of Casey Stengel's car are a couple of fungo bats . . . Chet Clemens is due for plenty of workouts from the Bees' manager this winter . . . While he was picking out his fungoes, Case spotted Bama Rowell . . .

"It's a good thing for you that I don't live near you," declared the Boss . . . "If I did, I'd run you ragged" . . .

For ability, thoroughness and patience, there isn't a coach in baseball who can compare with George "High Pockets" Kelly . . . Until the last man was out yesterday, Big George was still telling rookies what they were doing wrong . . . He's a great asset to the Bees and Casey Stengel.

Dick McDonough, Jimmy Bagley and Mike McNamee have sold John Brooks, the idea of paying them to ride over to the World Series with him . . . They are super salesmen, for John has also agreed to pay the Merrick Highway tolls . . . Even if the Reds knock off the Yankees, Cincinnati cannot miss being panned by the Scribes, for they are booking five and six to a room in the Ohio metropolis for the series . . .

BEES HEAD HOME

Before the second game was called yesterday, George Barclay, Bama Rowell and Jim Turner had started home over the road, in one of Casey Stengel's cars . . .

Tom Earley, George Barnicle and Joe Callahan, all of whom are Greater Boston boys, have a chance to be regular members of the Bees next season . . . You can put it in your book that Tony Cuccinello will be the third sacker . . . And that some of the others will be among the missing . . .

Next fall Skippy Roberge, the former Keith Academy boy, will be up for a tryout with the Bees' varsity . . . Jack O'Connor, who was the business manager of the Bradford, Pa., club of the Pony League will winter in Florida . . . When they go to the draft meeting tomorrow night at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York, Pres. Bob Quinn, Sec. Jack Quinn and Casey Stengel will be accompanied by Jack Onslow.

STAGG LAUGHS

For the rest of his life, the 76-year-old Alonzo Stagg will be chuckling over the victory his University of the Pacific scored over the University of California . . . The Little Three lost caste on Saturday . . . Williams was knocked off by Middlebury, Amherst took the count from Vermont and Rutgers bumped off Wesleyan . . . To keep the Green Mountain state clear, Norwich stopped Hobart.

During his stay here while umpiring the Brooklyn and Giants series, Dolly Stark had Dr. Tommy Richards treat his knee . . . Clyde Engle, the old time utility man of the Red Sox, will winter at the Hotel Lenox . . .

Dan Howley is out at Toronto . . . Tony Lazzeri will double as business and playing manager . . . When asked "What kind of a season did you have?", Joe Mulligan, the former Holy Cross hurler replied "Just fair" . . . Joe is too honest to be a baseball star . . . He should have alibi-ed his lack of success to the poor Toronto club or a bad arm . . . But, he's not that type . . . "Just fair" covered the query, according to his ethics.

Frank Moynihan Ace Grid Picker

When the smoke of Saturday's football battles cleared, Frank Moynihan of the Evening American sports staff had the expert selector's laurel firmly on his brow, with nine correct choices and only one error. He named New Hampshire over Colby, and the latter won. That game figured close anyhow, and it wasn't a bad miscue.

Wins and losses are to be counted, over the season's choices, for percentages, with ties thrown out excepting where the selector picks a tie, in which case he'll be wrong if either team wins. The score:

	W	L	T	Pct
Frank Moynihan	9	1	2	.900
Jack Conway	8	2	2	.800
Dave Glueck	8	2	2	.800
Herb Finnegan	7	3	2	.700
Will Connell	7	3	2	.700
Austen Lake	6	4	2	.600
Bill Grimes	6	4	2	.600
Fred Lane	6	4	2	.600

Woody Rich May Get Call For Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2 (AP)—Louisville's Colonels, now only one up on Rochester in the little World Series, were hopeful today of returning to their winning stride under floodlights, where they have been so successful in play-off games.

The series now stands 2 to 1 for Louisville, with two games to be played here and the remaining two, if necessary, at Rochester.

Manager Bill Southworth may call upon Mike Ryba, who was beaten in the first game, to hurl for Rochester tonight, while giant Jim Weaver, victor in the second game, or Woody Rich, may get the call for Louisville.

Bromwich Faces Puncec in Final

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2 (AP)—John Bromwich, the sleder blond from Australia who hits equally well with either hand, met Franjo Punec of Yugoslavia today in an all-foreign finale of the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament.

The women's final brings together Alice Marble, world's campion, and Dorothy Bundy, Santa Monica, defending titleholder.

Bromwich reached the finals by defeating Bobby Riggs, national champion, 6—4, 6—4, 0—6, 6—3, and avenging a defeat in the finals of the Davis Cup play.

Celebrities From Everywhere Consult John E. Warner

BOSTON, Oct. 1 (J.W.)—Many important celebrities of the stage and screen from all over the United States and Canada have consulted and taken treatments from John E. Warner, foremost hair and scalp specialist. To these people a good head of hair is a necessity, even more than to men in other lines of endeavor. Pictured is Duke McHale, nationally known tap and ballet dancer, who appeared in "Babes in Arms" and other hits, and who is now appearing at the Brown Derby. Mr. McHale says: "My good head of hair is an asset which I must keep and I know that your advice and treatment is the best available anywhere." Though baldness is a permanent condition, statistics show that 85% of all baldness is due to local scalp conditions which can be corrected and checked if caught in time. If your scalp shows symptoms of approaching baldness such as dandruff, itchy or oily scalp, and falling or thinning hair, you should in your own best interests consult John E. Warner before it is too late. Thousands of men have saved and improved their hair through his treatment, but no case is ever accepted unless beneficial results are certain. There is no charge or obligation for a private examination at his offices, 7th floor, 515 Washington St., opp. R. H. White's (near corner of West St.). Hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. daily. Saturdays to 6 P. M. Phone HUB. 1705. There is a separate department for women. Fees for treatment are moderate. Advt.

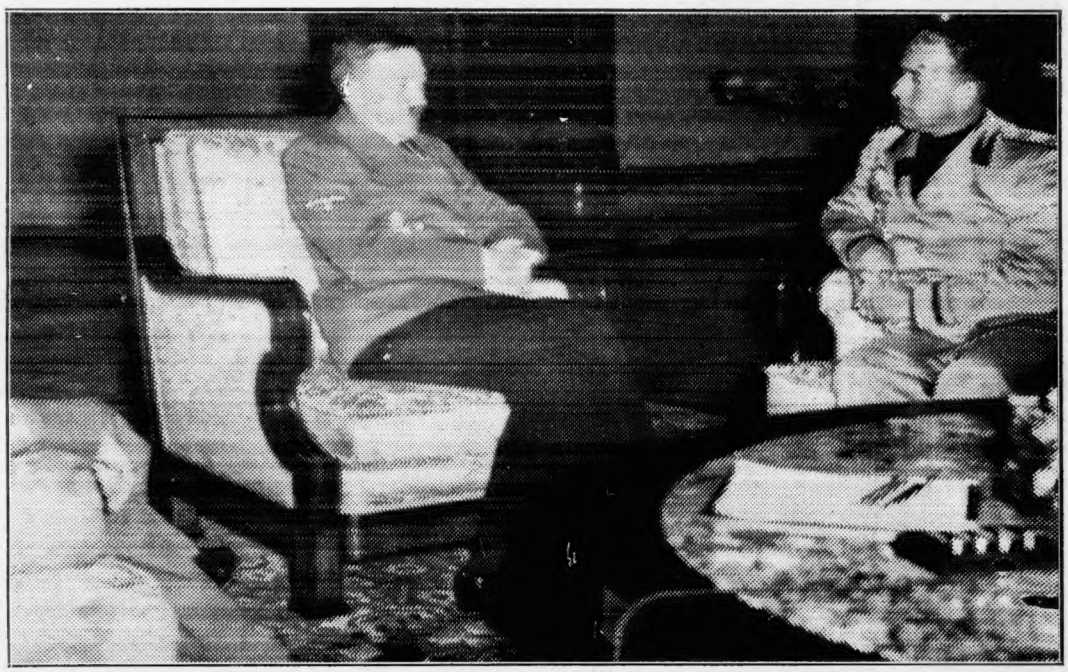
Fate

Of Europe may rest on this historic meeting as Adolf Hitler (left) and Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, confer in Berlin. All details secret, it is believed to be Hitler's move for peace — on his own terms. Attitude of Italy will be factor in deciding how drastic those terms will be. This International News Photo was radioed to Boston Evening American within an hour after the conference was held.



Deadly.

These high powered Nazi guns were designed for coastline defense on the Baltic and North seas. Germany is said to have so many of them that a large number is being transferred to Westwall positions, a hint perhaps that Hitler will soon stake everything on a furious drive against the Maginot Line.
